Land Workshop Stresses New Recreational Interests

Persons attending the second session of a land development workshop at Warren Area High School last night learned of new activities drawing increasing interest among participants in outdoor recreation and the need for careful planning in the development of recreation areas.

General Alarm Fire Races Through Easton

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — A general alarm fire raced through a row of buildings in downtown Easton Wednesday night, destroying or damaging five homes and three business buildings.

More than 200 firemen from surrounding communities, including Phillipsburg, N. J., responded to the blaze which, firemen said, broke out in the vicinity of a B&H Container Co. storage building. It spread rapidly.

At least ten firemen suffered minor injuries and 12 persons fled their burning homes. Residents of other nearby homes near the intersection of U. S. 611 and N. Delaware Drive were evacuated as a precaution.

State Money May Complete Route 219

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP) — A State Highways Commission official promised Wednesday that the new U.S. 219 north-south highway will be finished with state money if federal funds are not available.

"You can rest at ease that this is not going to be a road to nowhere," Commission Vice Chairman Louis B. Feldmann told a public hearing attended by representatives of seven counties in highway district nine.

The hearing was one of a series being conducted by the commission on its six-year improvement program.

Two segments of the four-lane, limited access highway are already open in Cambria County, and four more sections are set to open next month. But it will be in Ebensburg at U.S. 22 until additional construction is completed.

When finished, the road will enable motorists to drive from Buffalo, N.Y., to North Carolina.

Feldmann said that in Somerset County the road will be a two-lane highway on a four-lane right of way to permit eventual widening when needed.

Officials of the Somerset County Planning Commission argued that the need already exists for four lanes.

Akeley May Have Atomic Power Plant

Akeley will soon have a brand new atomic power plant if a map in this month's Scientific American magazine is accurate. The map indicates that reactors have been ordered for two planned A-power plants, one roughly at Akeley and the other in or around Bradford.

Some checking, however, has revealed that Penelick knows nothing of the plants; and an employee of Scientific American says the map symbols at Akeley and Bradford probably represent plants that will be built somewhere in Pennsylvania, but at sites not yet determined.

The map is on page 28 of the magazine illustrating an article entitled "The Arrival of Nuclear Power."

The workshops are sponsored by the Warren County Extension Service.

Moving along from the field of the county's recreational potential as it was discussed at the first session, last night's speaker directed their talks to the fields of evaluation and proper planning of the various facilities needed to meet both current and future demands.

Stanley Netherley, Reed Netherley Associates, consulting planners, gave an overall breakdown of the various activities that could be expected to play important roles in the development of the county's recreational potential, emphasizing those activities that have been making the greatest gain in participants over the past few years. Red MIG Shoots Down Unarmed Navy Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red Chinese MIG aircraft attacked two unarmed American planes which strayed near Communist Hainan Island Tuesday night.

One was shot down, the other fled to Da Nang, South Vietnam.

The Pentagon, announcing this Wednesday, said the two U.S. Navy propeller-driven A1 Skyraiders inadvertently strayed into Hainan's airspace because of navigational difficulties.

Peking Radio, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, charged the United States with carrying out "war provocations."

$25 Million Rec Development Planned North of DuBois

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two real estate developers revealed Wednesday their plans for a $25 million, 20-square-mile recreation area centered on Lake Rene just north of DuBois.

James C. Dumbler Jr. and Jack Ballou of Mount Lebanon said the area—known as Treasure Lake—will take 15 years to finish. They expect to have nearly 2,000 homes built within two years.

Rapides Bridge, about three miles outside Hanoi's city limits and the end of the tunnel for Communist China's supply routes to the capital.

Pilots reported hitting the steel bridge with 3,000-pound bombs but said they could not make a damage assessment because of broken clouds.

Radio Hanoi said a populated area of Hanoi was rocket-bombed and claimed downing six planes, three over Hanoi and three over the area around Vinh. There was no immediate American comment.

U.S. spokesman announced earlier that two MIG17 jets had been shot down in the raids.

Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs zeroed in on the surface-to-air missile sites ranging from eight to 12 miles west and north of Hanoi and reported silencing all four.

American B52 bombers aimed four more strikes Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning at North Vietnamese troops massing near the Marine base at Khe Sanh, the American wedge in the narrow valley expected to be the Communist route for a major thrust at South Vietnam's northern provinces.

North Vietnamese gunners surrounding the 5,000-man outpost slammed 200 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire into the Marine compound over a 24-hour period, killing one man and wounding nine.

Scattered fighting also was reported in other areas. A U.S. 25th Infantry Division unit lost six men and suffered 11 wounded in a clash near the town of Hoc Mon, eight miles northwest of Saigon. Enemy casualties were not reported.

Eight miles to the north of the South Vietnamese capital, U.S. soldiers said they killed 40 guerrillas without losing a man. Another 98 enemy dead were reported from a fight near the 25th Division's headquarters at Cu Chi, 25 miles west of Saigon.

US, South Korea Reach Mutual Agreement

SEOUL (AP) — The U.S. government promised President Chung Hee Park Thursday that it would consult immediately with his government whenever North Korean actions threaten the security of South Korea.

Winding up four days of marathon meetings and tough bargaining, U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance and the South Korean president in a joint communique condemned the "increasingly aggressive and violent actions of the North Korean Communists over the past 14 months in violation of the armistice agreement."

Vance and Park pledged their governments to act immediately to determine what actions should be taken under their mutual defense treaty should acts of Communist aggression continue.

The two governments also agreed their defense ministers would meet annually to discuss common defense and security problems.

Vance had his second meeting with President Park only 3 1/2 hours after emerging from a 10-hour, all-night meeting with South Korea's foreign minister.

Park and his ministers had demanded that the United States commit itself to "immediate retaliatory measures jointly with the Republic of Korea" in the event of a major Communist attack. But the pledge to consult immediately was as far as the United States would go.

The communique indicated Vance had rejected reported

South Korean requests for increased military muscle, including more and better naval and air equipment.

The overnight meeting with Foreign Minister Choi Kyu-hah was Vance's fourth session since arriving Sunday to reassure the South Koreans, who claimed the Communist threat to their security was being overlooked by a U.S. government primarily concerned with securing the freedom of the Pueblo and its crew.

Vance originally had been scheduled to return to Washington Tuesday.

Rusk Says Hanoi Rejects Peaceful Settlement Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Wednesday that Communist North Vietnam has thus far rejected President Johnson's San Antonio formula for a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam war.

In a statement Rusk said that "I must report that all explorations to date have resulted in a rejection."

The United States, Rusk continued, is "not interested in propaganda gestures whose purpose is to mislead and confuse; we will be interested in a serious move toward peace when Hanoi comes to the conclusion that it is ready to move in that direction."

"Hanoi knows how to get in touch with us," the statement noted.

Robert J. McCloskey, press officer for the State Department, read the secretary's statement to reporters.

Asked whether the statement was drafted with Rusk knowing what was in the most recent peace feelers through U.N. Secretary General U Thant and Italian foreign minister Amintore Fanfani, McCloskey replied that the statement "takes into account everything we know."

Rusk's statement said it was issued in reply to questions on "the connection between the possibility of negotiations for a peaceful settlement in Vietnam and the military operations now in progress."

The San Antonio formula to which Rusk referred was contained in a speech Johnson made in the Texas city Sept. 29, 1967.

That speech set out that the United States "is willing to stop all aerial and naval bombardment of North Vietnam when this will lead promptly to productive discussions."

It continued: "We of course, assume that while discussions proceed North Vietnam would not take advantage of the bombing cessation or limitation."

Officials said the Rusk statement of Wednesday constituted the report of the administration up to the moment—in fulfillment of assurances President Johnson gave that there would be a report on the outcome of explorations of Hanoi's position.

Rusk said that "at no time has Hanoi indicated publicly or privately that it will refrain from taking military advantage of any cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam."

Thant Convinced Peace As Far Away As Ever

PARIS (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant conferred Wednesday with a North Vietnamese diplomat and came away convinced that peace in Vietnam is as far away as ever, informed sources reported.

After a 75-minute meeting with Mai Van Bo, head of the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris, Thant was said to believe the positions of North Vietnam and the United States were too far apart to hope for any early peace conference.

Later Thant saw President Charles de Gaulle, a critic of U.S. policy in Vietnam. Both agreed that negotiations on Vietnam "are not for tomorrow," the sources said.

Thant was said to feel the political situation in Vietnam was too complex to be settled by bilateral negotiations between North Vietnam and the United States, even with a South Vietnamese representative at the Americans' side. Bo reportedly insisted on the inclusion of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, whose role in eventual negotiations has been challenged by the Saigon government.

It was also emphasized during Thant's talks that Red Chinese influence in Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, was discouraging whatever sentiment there was in North Vietnam for negotiation, the sources said.

Thant was to have returned to New York from London Tuesday night after a peace mission that also took him to India and the Soviet Union. He suddenly canceled his flight and came to Paris after spending the night in London.

Nguyen Van Sao, a North Vietnamese newsman, told other reporters in London that at Thant's request he helped to set up the session with Bo in Paris.

Sao said the meeting primarily was to permit Thant to receive answers to questions he submitted to the North Vietnamese regime last week through North Vietnam's consul general in New Delhi. These questions were said to relate to Hanoi's terms for a peace conference.

After his talk with Thant, Bo quickly contacted his government, sources said.

In London, British authorities said they were disenchanted with Thant's views disclosed in talks he held Tuesday with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown. They reported Wilson and Brown disagreed with Thant's approach.

Thant is taking the view that if the bombing of North Vietnam halts he is satisfied that peace talks will follow within three or four weeks.

U.S. Will Sign Part Of Nuclear Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced Wednesday it will sign one section of a treaty aimed at barring nuclear weapons from Latin America—but it also will spell out this country's interpretation of any restraints on U.S. nuclear power.

A White House announcement said the United States will sign protocol II of the treaty signed exactly a year ago at Tlatelolco, Mexico, aimed at making Latin America a nuclear-free zone.

The United States will not sign protocol I, because it is unwilling to give up the deployment of nuclear weapons on any U.S. territory covered by the treaty. This includes Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

A presidential announcement said the United States will sign protocol II in Mexico "with an appropriate statement" and that the international agreement then will go to the Senate with a request that it be ratified.

Sources said that the statement will make it clear that the United States reserves the right to land nuclear-armed warplanes, overfly hemisphere countries with such planes, and arrange port calls for nuclear-armed submarines and surface ships—provided the nation or nations directly involved in each case are agreeable.

Mexico was a prime mover in initiating the treaty. Communist Cuba was asked to sign it but declined. The only other Latin nations which have not signed are Barbados and Guyana.

The only nuclear power to sign the treaty is the United Kingdom. Government sources said they did not know whether the Soviet Union, France or Communist China might do so at a later date.

pointed out that while the old standbys such as hunting, fishing, camping and pleasure driving have made only moderate gains, newcomers such as water-skiing and bicycling are showing rapid advancements.

In drawing attention to the existing needs of the county for more recreational developments, he cited the fact that attendance at Chapman Dam State Park had increased five times in just the past few years and that a check of the facilities there indicated that this facility was overloaded 35 percent of the time.

Bob Peterson, county planner, followed Netherley's talk with a slide program that demonstrated the difficulties that had arisen from poor planning in other recreational centers of the state. Traffic flow problems and a superfluous use of signs were the most obvious of the mistakes Peterson said should be avoided in Warren County if we are to gain the full benefit from the opportunities we have at hand.

Paul Oberiner, in his talk, emphasized the need for careful planning in setting up any type of recreational or resort facility and detailed a number of specifics that would be considered by the professionals in the field. Location, soil conditions, solutions to sanitation problems, and road and trail construction were the important items covered by him in relating the work of the professional planning engineer to the individuals' needs when planning a recreational development.

Following each talk a period of questioning was permitted and the response from the audience indicated a deep interest in all of the subjects covered.

Next week's meeting, to be held February 21, will feature Joe Cardenuto, recreation specialist from Penn State. Wayne C. Bellman, regional sanitary engineer, and Eugene J. Alexandrowicz, regional sanitarian with the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

Union Asks Workers To Return to Jobs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Union officials said Wednesday they've asked striking workers at Westinghouse Electric's East Pittsburgh plant to return Thursday.

Over 500 have been on a wildcat walkout over work rules for more than a week in the switch gear division.

Three '68 Apollo Flights Possible

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency may orbit America's first three-man astronaut crew two months sooner than now officially scheduled and squeeze in three manned Apollo flights this year.

This accelerated launch schedule, made possible by recent successes in America's man-to-the-moon drive, is currently under consideration by National Aeronautics and Space Administration planners.

NASA's official schedule currently calls for astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr., Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham to ride the first manned Apollo moonship on an Earth orbital flight in the "last quarter" of this year, meaning no earlier than October.

Their spaceship is to arrive at Cape Kennedy toward the end of next month, and sources say launch preparation time for the mooncraft will probably require only slightly more than four months, making an August launch possible.

Whether the Schirra command mission is in fact moved up and whether two additional manned flights are attempted this year will be determined by key administrative decisions to be made by NASA planners in the next few weeks, coupled with the degree of success of America's second Saturn 5 moon launch, now scheduled March 21.

Judge Rules The Murder Never Occurred

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sixteen years ago three youths were sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, but a Philadelphia judge has ruled no murder ever occurred.

Acting on a petition by one of the three defendants, Judge Edmund B. Spaeth Jr. of Common Pleas Court ruled Tuesday that at most, a $15 robbery and assault occurred.

Joseph Antoniewicz, 32, Edward Park 34, and William Hollowell, 33, pleaded guilty to murder in the May 21, 1952, attack and robbery of Harry Thompson, 54.

Thompson died nine days after the attack and the commonwealth charged them with murder. A three-judge panel convicted them of first degree murder after their guilty pleas, and sentenced them to life imprisonment.

At recent hearings, Dr. Joseph W. Spellman, the city's medical examiner, testified "Harry Thompson died as a result of a coronary heart disease which was not caused, contributed to, or aggravated by the assault."

Bernard Segal, Antoniewicz's lawyer, had charged that a member of the coroner's staff had not checked with Lankenau Hospital to determine the cause of death.

Head Rests Ordered For 1969 Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Head rests will be required on all passenger cars built after next Dec. 31 under a federal auto safety standard announced Wednesday to prevent whiplash neck injuries in rear-end collisions.

Highway Administrator Lowell K. Birdwell said "the need for protective head restraints is strikingly apparent in that about 4 million rear-end crashes occur in the United States each year . . . and a substantial number of these crashes produce 'whiplash' neck injuries . . ."

The National Safety Council says about one-fourth of all car crashes involve rear-end collisions.

The new standard will require head rests on the seat of the driver and the right front passenger. The restraints can either be part of the seat or an attached cushion.

Minor Mishap Is Recorded

A minor mishap at 6:10 p.m. Wednesday caused an estimated $75 damage to a car owned by Kathleen Hyatt, 21 Elm st., according to borough police.

The mishap occurred, police said, when a car operated by Betty Person, 213 Connecticut ave., backed out of a driveway on Edgewood pl. and struck the Hyatt vehicle on the left fender. The Hyatt vehicle was legally parked, police said.

DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT $1,500

A fire in an oil storage tank near the Grundenerville rd., Pleasant Township, caused an estimated $1,500 damage Wednesday, according to Dave Wurley, Pleasant Township Volunteer Fire Department. Wurley said the fire broke out about 10:50 a.m. on the Jack E. McCool lease. According to Wurley, the fire started when men working on the tank broke a drain valve. Oil leaking from the valve was ignited by a fire built by the workmen for warmth. Firemen, Wurley stated, were forced to let the fire burn itself out because of lack of water at the scene. Nine men answered the call. Firemen stood by until about noon, according to Wurley. (Photo by Mansfield)

New Leases Will Double Landing Fees at Airport

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — Mayor Charles B. Magnuson and corporation counsel William Blood will deliver proposed leases to Allegheny and Mohawk Airlines which will double the airlines landing fees at Jamestown Municipal Airport. The Airport Commission approved the action Wednesday afternoon when chairman Samuel C. Alessi Jr. reported he was unable to pin down officials of either airlines on when they would be able to negotiate new leases.

The lease arrangements with both Allegheny and Mohawk have been on a month-to-month basis for some time. The commission had been waiting for completion of a management survey before seeking new leases. The survey by Albert Bloomquist and Associates, New Jersey, was released last month. Under the terms of the new lease the city will ask for landing fees based on 10 cents for each 1,000 pounds. Although the present fee is on a different system it would average less than five cents per 1000 pounds.

The commission also agreed to advertise for a fixed based operator at the airport. The lease of the present operator, Warren Skelton, expires in November, but the commission made it clear that Skelton would be free to bid.

The make-up of an advisory group to attend commission meetings on a non-vote basis was also brought up at Wednesday's meeting. The number of names and ideas were discussed and Mayor Magnuson was empowered to submit appointments. The appointees will be from Jamestown area villages and towns and is designed to create a wider knowledge of the airport's needs and problems. Alessi advised the commission if a district airport operation cannot be set up within the next few years, he would favor extra charges to non-resident airport users. This matter was referred to the corporation counsel's office for study and recommendation.

Alessi also announced at Wednesday's meeting the Federal Aviation Agency will conduct a survey in March to determine the advisability of building a control tower at the airport.

Widespread Manhunt Conducted for 'Psycho'

GAFFNEY, S. C. (AP) — Tension mounted in this small mill and college town Wednesday, as police searched for a man who reportedly said by telephone that he was "psycho" and might kill again.

Police conducted a wide-spread manhunt in the wake of the strangulation of a woman and a teenage girl and the abduction of another teenager.

Cherokee County Sheriff Julian Wright said he believed the three incidents were related. A mystery call Monday night, believed to have been placed by the same man who called a Gaffney newsman last week, strengthened the sheriff's belief.

The latest crime occurred Tuesday morning as a 15-year-old Negro girl, Opal Dianne Buckson, waited at a rural school bus stop. Gracie Buckson, 18, told officers she had not yet reached the bus stop when she saw her sister forced into the trunk of a car by a white man who sped away.

50 Per Cent Against LBJ's War Handling

NEW YORK (AP) — Half of the adult Americans polled since the recent Viet Cong offensive in South Vietnam disapprove of the way President Johnson is handling the war while only about one-third approve, the Gallup Poll said Wednesday.

Public approval of Johnson's handling of the war slipped to 35 percent from 39 percent since January, the poll said.

In a September survey, 28 percent expressed approval of the President's Vietnam policy.

In the latest survey, 1,503 persons in 300 communities were asked, "Do you approve or disapprove of the way President Johnson is handling the situation in Vietnam?"

Half disapproved, 35 percent approved and 15 percent had no opinion. In January, 47 percent disapproved, 39 percent approved and 14 percent had no opinion.

of the Gaffney Ledger said an anonymous caller had telephoned only Monday night and said, "If they don't catch me, there will be more deaths."

Gibbons said he immediately notified police but word of the latest mystery call was not disclosed until Wednesday.

The newsman said his Monday night caller sounded like the same man who called him last Thursday, telling of two slayings and giving instructions on where to find the bodies.

Sheriff Wright, deputies and Gibbons, following the directions, found the nude, strangled bodies of Mrs. Nancy Carol Parrish, 20, and Nancy Christine Rhinehart, 15, both of Gaffney. The bodies were in remote wooded areas of the county about five miles apart.

PFT Plans to Set Strike Date

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The head of the Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers said Wednesday he expects his union to name a strike date on Sunday.

Albert Fondy, president of the teachers group, had set Wednesday as the deadline for the Board of Education to reply to his request for a bargaining election. He said he hadn't heard from the board and didn't expect to until Feb. 20, the next board meeting.

The federation, which claims a membership of one-third of the city's 3,000 teachers, is battling a recently merged teachers group for the right to represent teachers here.

Romney Says Position Is Foolhardy, Defeatist

CLAREMONT, N.H. (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney described the administration's position on peace in Vietnam on Wednesday as negative, "foolhardy and defeatist," and questioned whether former Vice President Richard M. Nixon has anything better to offer.

Keynoting his renewed New Hampshire presidential primary campaign, Romney asked of his chief rival:

"Does Mr. Nixon disagree that it is necessary for responsible candidates for the Republican presidential nomination to offer the voters more than just a change of officeholders?"

Romney, troubled by a sore throat, rested and conferred with campaign advisers in Manchester before setting out to meet voters in Newport and Claremont.

Romney shook hands in a Newport supermarket, then told about 100 people at a school cafeteria in Claremont that U.S. escalation of the Vietnam war is self-defeating.

"We've been following a strategy that just doesn't work, a strategy that doesn't produce results," Romney said. "How you can win the hearts and minds of the people by destroying them and the property you are trying to defend is beyond me."

Romney said his proposal of neutralization of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, guaranteed by international agreement, would be an effective instrument to end the war.

Nixon has said it is not, arguing that neutrality could only be applied once peace had been obtained.

Romney said that is incorrect historically and currently. "Without a just and positive program for peace, the dead lock on peace won't be ended," he said. "And the war will continue indefinitely and at unknown costs."

Nixon Supports Mayor Lindsay On Strike

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon strongly supported Mayor John V. Lindsay's position Wednesday on the strike of sanitation workers in New York, thus indirectly criticizing the action taken by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"The sanitation union broke the law, the state law," Nixon said, "and I think that the law having been broken, Mayor Lindsay was correct in then saying—and requesting—that the National Guard come in, in order, in effect, to do the job they were not doing."

"Breaking of the laws of the state of New York or any other state cannot and must not be rewarded by giving those who break the law what they are asking for."

Thunderous applause from some 3,000 students and townspeople gathered in the University of New Hampshire field house interrupted Nixon at this point.

Rockefeller, although he continues to deny presidential ambitions, is considered one of Nixon's leading contenders for the Republican nomination.

The governor and mayor have been engaged in a dispute over handling of the sanitation strike. Nixon is campaigning in New Hampshire for the state's presidential primary election March 12.

Vietnam Veteran Must Pay $71.20 for Losing Rifle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said Wednesday that a discharged Vietnam veteran, Ernest J. Wagner, is being billed $71.20 for losing his rifle because an investigating officer found him negligent.

"The finding was based on a determination that Wagner had been negligent in placing his rifle on an aircraft in which he was neither a passenger nor a member of the crew," the Army said.

According to the official version, the helicopter flew off on a mission and when it returned to Wagner's base area the weapon was missing.

The matter came to light Tuesday when Rep. Henry C. Schadeberg, R-Wis., complained that Wagner, a 24-year-old constituent from Racine, Wis., had been given 30 days to pay for the rifle or face legal action.

Schadeberg said Wagner, discharged from the Army honorably last year after a tour in Vietnam, had told the congressman he believes the M14 rifle fell from a helicopter during a combat mission.

"He offered his life in defense of this country and now he gets a bill for it," Schadeberg said.

In response to inquiries, the Army told this story:

On Jan. 29, 1967, while Spec. 4 Wagner was a member of the 25th Aviation Battalion at Cuchi in Vietnam, he was assigned as a member of a helicopter crew on a standby alert.

"After being assigned this duty, he placed his M14 rifle aboard the helicopter located in the aircraft parking area and returned to the unit area," the Army said.

"However, Wagner did not go on this mission, having been replaced through mutual agreement with another soldier who had asked for the flight in Wagner's place," the Army said.

"When the helicopter returned several hours later, Wagner's rifle was missing. A check of the unit area failed to turn up the weapon."

A spokesman said he did not know whether the helicopter mission involved combat.

Chamber Group Sees USAF Film

The Industrial Affairs Committee of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce, meeting last night for dinner at the Blue Manor, heard a presentation illustrated with slides on "National Forest Administration" by Ed Waszkiewicz from the U.S. Forest Service.

Chairman Dan Morse, Pa. Gas Co., welcomed Joe McAmbley, Penelec, as a new member of the group.

Curt Sasserson, Pennsylvania Furnace and Iron, reported on the industrial seminars scheduled for Feb. 21 and March 13 at the Penn Laurel Motel for which reservations are still open by calling the Chamber of Commerce 723-3050.

Kiwanis Features Spaghetti Dinner

The feature attraction at Tuesday's regular meeting of the Youngsville Kiwanis Club was a spaghetti dinner cooked and served by the Rev. James Dorow with the assistance of Guy McCloskey and Earl Young.

Roger Slocum and John Schnell, members of the Youngsville Kiwanis Key Club, were introduced as guests by Gib Anderson. The boys reported on activities and future plans for the club.

The film "Land of the Overlanders," depicting what the tourist sees traveling the mountain highways of British Columbia, was provided by Ralph Taylor. Tom Meabon was guest projectionist.

Biggest Aerial Bombing Campaign in History

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — History's most concentrated aerial bombing campaign is under way around the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh in an effort to break the Communist siege ring, a qualified U.S. Air Force source said Wednesday.

Although large numbers of North Vietnamese troops and supply and ammunition dumps have been presumably destroyed, Communist pressure on the base 14 miles south of the demilitarized zone builds steadily.

Some Marine officers believe that without the mighty bombing campaign, Khe Sanh already would be untenable. Only 5,000 Marines face a force of perhaps 20,000 North Vietnamese regulars.

In the past month, Air Force, Navy and Marine fighter-bombers have flown more than 7,000 sorties against the Communist positions around Khe Sanh. More than 85 B52 missions of up to nine planes each have rained bombs into the surrounding mountains.

An indication that the North Vietnamese are escaping some of the wrath of the fighter-bombers came from the Chinese Communist newspaper Ta Kung Pao published in Hong Kong.

The newspaper said the North Vietnamese have dug an elaborate tunnel system. North Vietnamese artillery shell Khe Sanh for only three minutes because it takes only four minutes for U.S. bombers to reach them from nearby bases.

The Kung Pao said after each three-minute barrage, the artillery is dragged down through the tunnels to new positions to resume the shelling.

This would be no defense against the B52, however. They fly so high that the first intimation that they are overhead comes when their bombs strike. Some of the B52 loads include deep penetration, delayed action bombs that play havoc with tunnel systems.

Air Force strategists say the air strikes so far have included more than 1,000 secondary explosions. This means the U.S. bombs set off ammunition or petroleum either at dumps or loaded on trucks.

The planes have dropped more than 120 million pounds of bombs and napalm, plus rocket and cannon fire. An unofficial count shows the total explosive effect to be more than the combined power of the two atomic bombs dropped on Japan in World War II.

As the Marines expect, Khe Sanh is hit with human wave attacks on a scale unprecedented in the Vietnam war. U.S. jets will play a major role in the last line of defense.

The bulk of the effort around Khe Sanh has come from the U.S. Air Force, which has also airlifted tons of ammunition, gasoline and supplies since Khe Sanh was cut off from resupply by road.

A high Air Force source said: "We are attempting to smash his (the Communist) supply line all the way to Hanoi and Haiphong."

"Right now we are trying to keep the enemy confounded and confused. We are trying to keep him on the move enough so he can't get set for a big offensive."

The staggering amount of explosives dropped by U.S. planes apparently represents only the beginning. Reliable sources say contingent planning for the impelled base includes so many bombing strikes that controlling air traffic will be a major problem.

"We have a diversified plan to insure we can put in what we hope will be enough fire power to break any attack," a senior U.S. officer said. "With radar, we can carry out such an attack in any weather."

"We like to think it will be extremely difficult for any large force to move without our spotting it. But the Communists are masters of trenches and tunneling and thus it is virtually impossible to detect every move."

A major fear of ground strategists is that Communists troops will get in so close to Khe Sanh that many aerial and long-range artillery weapons will be ineffective because of the chance they may hit the Marines.

The B52s, for example, drop well away from Khe Sanh and some lucrative targets have had to be turned over to the smaller jets, with far less bomb loads but with better accuracy.

Bombing by radar goes on night and day. The Khe Sanh valley often is hidden for half the day by fog and clouds.

In extreme peril, such as a major enemy breakthrough of Khe Sanh's defenses, the Marines probably would retreat into their bunkers while U.S. planes dropped thousands of antipersonnel bombs to blow the North Vietnamese off the Leathern positions.

Long-range artillery with shells that air burst could help but there are only a few guns capable of this in position.

Marine officers in Da Nang say that the North Vietnamese have steadily closed in and that some enemy bunkers and trenches are only about 300 yards from the Marine barbed wire.

At such a distance, radar bombing strikes are extremely hazardous. Even visual bombing has to be carried out with the utmost care.

May Create Federal Force To Deal with Urban Riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's Commission on Civil Disorders is considering recommending creation of a specially trained federal force to deal with urban riots.

Sources close to the commission said the proposal reflects dissatisfaction with the performance of National Guard units in trying to quell riots last summer.

Further evidence of this dissatisfaction was expressed in a speech Tuesday night by Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City, vice chairman of the commission.

Lindsay told the New York State Publishers Association in Buffalo:

"In its studies, the commission found that the National Guard won no medals in those cities where it was called into burning ghettos."

"The guardsmen were under-trained and perhaps over-armed. By and large they were unsympathetic to the Negroes of the cities. The record is filled with charges that the guardsmen were unreliable, trigger-happy and ineffective in dealing with mobs in the streets."

President Johnson appointed the 11-member panel last July 29 to investigate the causes of riots that erupted in Detroit, Newark and other cities and to recommend preventative action.

The commission and its staff held extensive closed hearings and now is working in secret on its report, scheduled to go to the President March 1.

There was no immediate official National Guard reaction to the development, but one officer said he doubts the Guard

"would object very strenuously" to formation of a special riot control force because it "is a very unpleasant job and nobody likes it."

But he added the Guard likely would protest any move to eliminate guardsmen from civil disturbance duty. "If our state mission is downgraded, we're in trouble," he said.

Sources told The Associated Press that in discussing creation of a federal force to supplement the National Guard for riot duty, several questions have been raised within the commission, including:

Would it amount to a national quasi-military police force? Would it be a regular Army unit or would it have a uniform of its own?

At what point would such a force step in to quell a disorder? "Procedures would have to be established to determine who would come in and when," said a commission source, mentioning the dispute last summer between Johnson and Gov. George Romney of Michigan over whether there was any delay in getting federal troops to Detroit to deal with the riot there.

The National Guard's effectiveness in riot control is limited, a commission source said, not only by lack of proper training, but by "the fact most of the guard is lily-white."

Also because of the role the Guard played in disorders in the Deep South in the mid 1950s and early 1960s, it is often regarded by Negroes as a symbol of repression.

FRB Head Brushes Off Malfeasance Accusation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman William McCh. Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board brushed off an accusation that he was guilty of nonfeasance and malfeasance of office and spoke up again Wednesday for a tax boost at least as big as President Johnson recommended.

The accusation was fired by Martin's perennial antagonist, Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee. Patman based it on his interpretation of a 1966 law that it is a mandate to the Federal Reserve Board to keep the home mortgage market supplied with funds by buying paper of agencies concerned.

Martin said there is no mandate and that the board was exercising its discretion.

Smiling, Martin said of Patman, "I have had many pleasant exchanges with him. I don't believe he is serious about malfeasance in office."

He remained unperturbed even when Patman, referring to the board under Martin's leadership, said "outside of the Viet Cong, I do not know of any institution that has done more damage to the American economy in the past few years."

Turning to the main reason for his appearance before the Senate House Economic Committee, Martin said he favors the 10 per cent income tax surcharge President Johnson has recommended.

"I wouldn't object to a larger tax increase," he added under questioning.

Martin said the danger of an economic "overkill" because of a tax increase is less than the danger of runaway inflation as consumer spending goes up, business increases capital outlays and government spending, despite restraints, continues high.

Firemen Raise Money For Grave Marker

CLINTONVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Firemen began a drive Wednesday to raise money to buy a grave marker for the 10 Grossman children who perished in a fire at their home.

Fire Chief DeWayne Moore of Clintonville said any money left will be given to the mother, Mary Grossman, 34.

Mrs. Grossman was the only survivor of the fire that swept through the family's two-story frame home near Harrisville in Venango County Sunday, killing all her children and a handyman, Mrs. Grossman's husband, a disabled Korean War veteran, had died of cancer just the week before.

"All the money will go for the grave marker or Mrs. Grossman," he said. "Nothing will be taken out for expenses."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Local Teachers State Views

The Warren County Education Association met February 13, 1968 in the high school library to discuss action for Education Day and the results of the P.S.E.A. convention in Harrisburg. It was brought out at this meeting that not all areas of the Commonwealth are equally fortunate in terms of public understanding and support of the needs of public education. To dramatize the serious nature of the financial situation of the Public School System of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania State Education Association has issued . . . "a sanctions warning to be invoked immediately upon the Governor and the members of the General Assembly . . ." and has asked all local affiliates to request their local school boards to join in this action by making March 4, 1968 a non-teaching day. The purpose being that on this day actions will be taken to call attention to the financial problems of public education and to offer information concerning the status of financing and some possible legislation action to resolve certain of the problems.

It is proposed that delegations will travel to Harrisburg from all parts of the State, thus focusing attention on the activities of the State Legislature relative to bills pertaining to public school operations including financing and mandated salary schedules. Association members not involved in the Harrisburg trip will have the opportunity to attend local seminar study sessions. These sessions will be designed to promote better understanding of the methods of financing education in Pennsylvania, the relationship of state-local financial support, and the specific situation of the local school district in reference to these matters.

State Representative William W. Allen of Warren County and State Senator Richard Frame of the 25th Senatorial District have made public statements supporting in general terms the school subsidy program detailed in House Bill 1812 and salary schedules for professional employees of school districts and county school offices as proposed in House Bill 2039.

The School Board and residents of Warren County School District do in many ways, including the present local tax rates for school support, show their interest and concern in the development and maintenance of good public school programs for the youth of the District.

With local rates for school support among the upper 25 per cent of such rates in Pennsylvania, employing fewer people per 1,000 pupils, either professional or non-professional, whether for instruction, central office, clerical, building administration, custodial or cafeteria, than the average for the state, we are still unable to pay in the Warren County School District salaries which reach the average for employees of other second class school districts for comparable training, experience, and responsibility.

Considering the above, it is evident that the increased expenditures necessary to permit the district to employ adequate numbers of professional and non-professional personnel at realistic salaries cannot be secured from local sources, since local taxes are even now above the average, even though we have neither adequate staff nor are paying average salaries.

The State Subsidy Program at present is the only source from which to secure the required additional monies. The present system of State Subsidies is partly responsible for districts of less than average wealth, such as the Warren County School District, being able to properly finance schools with reasonable local tax effort. House Bill 1812 will partially correct this situation by decreasing local costs for transportation and increasing the State's share for building rentals and reimbursable instruction costs.

House Bill 2039 will increase minimum mandated salaries for most professional employees to more realistic levels. The salary for beginning teachers, for instance, would be $5,700, whereas currently is $4,500. This adjustment is long overdue and greatly needed. Reliable information indicates adjacent New York State districts will be using starting salaries of $6,200-$6,800 for comparable positions.

One of the basic objectives of the Warren County Education Association is to work with the local school board, administration, residents, and legislators for the improvement of education. We believe that such improvement can be aided by our organization's participation in the Action for Education Day activities of the Pennsylvania State Education Association and other local affiliates throughout the Commonwealth. It is our hope that the School Board will approve the requested calendar change so that we may accept what we believe is a professional responsibility to participate in activities for the improvement of Public School System of the Commonwealth.

In the interest of insuring continued quality education for the youth of the Warren County School District and all other students of the Commonwealth, the Warren County Education Association wishes to accept its proper responsibility in educating lay and professional alike concerning the serious financial situation facing schools in Pennsylvania and to encourage action on legislation we believe will be helpful in resolving at least some of the difficulties. To properly play our part, we are requesting the Warren County School Board to revise the school calendar for the 1967-68 school year to make March 4, 1968 a non-teaching day, substituting a scheduled non-school day, possibly Monday, April 15, 1968, in its place. Consideration is to be given to this request at a School Board meeting scheduled for Monday, February 26, 1968, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Board Room, 307 Pennsylvania Avenue West, Warren, Pennsylvania. Whatever the decision of the School Board concerning this request for a change of school calendar, the leadership and membership of the Warren County Education Association will abide by that decision.

JACK ANDERSON

South Korean Cabinet Storms

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson is now in the Far East covering the current crisis. He reports today on a South Korean cabinet meeting which he attended.)

SEOUL—The United States and South Korea, staunchest of allies since they drove back the North Korean invasion together in the early 1950s, came perilously close to a showdown the other day over the secret Panmunjom talks.

This reporter happened to be in the Blue House, the presidential mansion, when the storm broke. President Chung Hee Park kept his cabinet waiting 20 minutes while he told me of his outrage over North Korea's attempt on his life and the seizure of the Pueblo. The time for talk had ended, he said; retaliation is the only language the communists can understand.

Then the stern little South Korean leader, whose quiet manner is merely the moss on a character of granite, strode down the hallway from his office into the conference room. He told his waiting ministers about his conversation with me.

They agreed vociferously that Kim Il Sung, the North Korean dictator, mustn't go unpunished. The cabinet session quickly turned into a beehive of angry debate.

Sung Eun Kim, the outspoken defense minister, favored a unilateral military blow at North Korea. He had full confidence in his troops, who are proving again in Vietnam that they are among the world's toughest.

Chong Kyu Park, chief of the presidential protective force, called for retaliation in kind—an assassination attempt on Kim Il Sung. It was pointed out that the North Korean ruler was scheduled to make a public appearance at a Pyongyang rally. This would be a splendid opportunity, argued Chong Kyu Park, to give him a taste of his own tactics.

The intensely loyal security chief was severely jolted over the attempt on President Park's life. The fact that the assassination squad was able to penetrate within a block of the Blue House left him shaken. For 10 days he stayed in his office, snatching occasional sleep on a cot, as he directed the round-up of the infiltrators. He lost several pounds, but his men killed 27 and captured one of the 31 would-be assassins.

The cabinet ministers were even more disturbed, however, over being excluded from the secret Panmunjom negotiations. The two South Korean generals who normally attend the sessions hadn't been invited to participate.

The ministers feared that the United States was about to make a deal with North Korea for the return of the Pueblo crew. They felt that the United States was putting the Pueblo problem ahead of the assassination attempt and was not keeping the South Korean government informed.

ART BUCHWALD

They Support Travel Ban

WASHINGTON — I received an inspired letter from a young draftee friend of mine who is soon slated to go to Vietnam:

"Dear Art, 'I notice that President Johnson wants to put a head tax on tourists traveling outside the Western Hemisphere. As a loyal soldier who supports my Commander-in-Chief, I believe that not only should this tax be placed on tourists, but also on GIs to discourage them from going to Vietnam.

"Now it's true that many GIs I have talked to had their hearts set on going to Vietnam, but I'm sure that a majority of them could be persuaded to postpone their trip if it were explained to them that our balance-of-payments situation was at stake.

"Everyone knows one of the reasons for the U. S. gold outflow is that so much money is being spent in Vietnam. If every American soldier, sailor and marine who had planned to go to Southeast Asia this year would stay home, we could save millions and millions of dollars, which could go toward building President Johnson's Great Society.

"I have talked to all the guys in my outfit and you would be amazed and proud of how they reacted to my suggestion. Tony Morelli, who sleeps in the bunk on top of me, said, 'I had my heart set on going to Vietnam, but I think we have to put our country's economic plight ahead of our personal pleasure. I'm willing to make the sacrifice and stay here if it will help the U. S. Treasury Dept. to get straightened out.'

"Rory Schwartz said, 'Nobody likes to pay taxes, but if taxing GIs so they won't go to Vietnam is in the national interest, then I have to go along with it. Hell, there are more important things in my life than visiting Vietnam.'

"Charley O'Brien also said that he would prefer to stay in the Western Hemisphere for the next few years. 'I say if you've seen one Vietnam, you've seen them all, and I don't want people pointing at me someday and saying I was the cause of the gold drain.'

"A few of the noncoms don't seem to have the patriotic spirit. When I suggested our outfit stay at home, my sergeant blew up and said we were going abroad whether President Johnson liked it or not. He said 'A guy dreams of going to Vietnam all his life. He scribbles and saves to make it possible, and then someone comes along and says he can't go because it's going to cost the United States too much money. Well, I might not have the American spirit, but I'm taking all of you with me whether you want to go or not.'

"I got the same reaction from the captain who doesn't think he can make major until he gets some Vietnam under his belt. I asked him if I could write to President Johnson suggesting my tax plan for GIs, and he practically threw me out of the office. He just didn't want to save the taxpayers any money.

"Since I can't write to the President directly without being court-martialed, will you make the suggestion? The tax could be based on rank. Enlisted men would be taxed $7 a day for every day they spent in Vietnam and officers $15 a day. Even those who could afford it might hesitate to pay that kind of money to go to Southeast Asia when there is so much more to see here at home.

"There will probably be some squawks from Congress, but the way to get around that is to say the head tax on GIs is only a temporary measure, and as soon as the balance-of-payments picture gets straightened out, it will be lifted. Then any GI who wants to go to that part of the world will be able to do so.

"I hope you think this is as good an idea as the guys in the barracks do.

"Please tell President Johnson we support him almost 100 per cent in his request that Americans not go abroad at this crucial time."

MASON DENISON

Up to the Electorate

HARRISBURG — Two weeks from today Pennsylvania's first constitutional revision effort in nearly a century comes to a close — with the question moot at this point as to whether the convention ultimately will be classified as a success or failure.

Much has been written and much has been said on the pros and cons of whether the convention itself can be termed a success or muddling failure to date — insofar as the deliberations of the 163 delegates are concerned.

Unquestionably the debate will continue to rage long after the convention's three-month life span has been reached February 29.

At the moment however some salient points are perhaps worth noting — especially insofar as the "complainers" are concerned.

To begin with, the make-up of the 163 delegates is about as varied as will be found anywhere. They come from most walks of life; their personal ideologies are as different in many cases as night and day.

There is for example the hardened politician, whose open mouth usually is heard braying on almost any given issue — primarily from the negative standpoint, a cacophony of brittle, irritating clap-trap.

At the other end of the spectrum is what might be termed the lay delegate — housewife, businessman, etc., whose prime concern lies in earnest and sincere effort to cover the four points spelled out in the convention dictate.

Between these two extremes the convention has struck a plodding course. Up to this point at least, it is to say the political pro has not ruled the convention room — to the surprise of many (including the political old pros themselves) who initially assumed they would be running the show from beginning to end.

Debate on issues has been free and time-consuming, which has been one of the complaints of critics who would like to have seen a "short, business-like" convention session — such as the type of legislative session the idealists (and political pros) are almost constantly carping about (each for different reasons however).

Most convention delegates have felt the issues too grave and of too great importance to be shuffled over lightly, and it might be said, carelessly. Of this convention, regardless of what the ultimate outcome may be and notwithstanding the short three-month time limit placed upon it, it cannot be said that the issues were not discussed, reviewed and discussed again and again.

In fact it has been this that has brought the convention to the point where it is now, with only two weeks remaining for ironing out final action on the four subjects before the delegates.

Secondly, it is assumed the non-political organizations who fought for the convention in the first place will also back the recommendations of the convention and do their bit to urge electorate support on April 23.

In large degree the action of Pennsylvania's electorate in either accepting or rejecting the convention's recommendations on April 23 will be one phase in determining success or failure of this first constitutional rewriting chore in 94 years!

Tomorrow: Auto expenses.

Save On Taxes IV

(In collaboration with the Research Institute of America) Don't overlook any $3 a month supplementary Medicare payments which you made in 1967. You can get a two-fold break for these payments on your 1967 income tax return.

First, the payments qualify for the new provision permitting 50 per cent of the premiums paid on health policies to be deducted up to not more than $150 a year, if you itemize your deductions. This amounts to $18. Second, the remaining 50 per cent of the Medicare payments can then be added to your medical bills in figuring how much of these bills you can deduct as regular medical expenses. This also amounts to $18.

During 1967, the Treasury issued several favorable rulings on medical expenses which can increase your deductible expenses. If a physician prescribed oral contraceptives because childbirth raised a serious threat to the life of your wife, the Treasury agreed that you could deduct this cost as a medical expense. While this ruling applied specifically to oral contraceptives, it would seem to cover any contraceptives prescribed by a doctor for similar reasons.

If you are paying bills for yourself or a relative in a retirement home, the Treasury gave you a significant tax-saving opportunity in 1967. It ruled that the portion of the retirement home fee which is allocable to medical expenses for the occupants of the home is deductible as an itemized medical expense — and this allocation can be made on the basis of the retirement home's experience.

Thus, in the case of a husband and wife who paid $200 a month as a life care fee in a retirement home, the Treasury allowed a deduction of $80 a month as medical expenses when the couple proved from the home's experience that their $200 monthly fee included $60 a month for the cost of providing them with medical care.

Unfortunately, the Treasury did not spell out just how the allocation was determined by the home — but the ruling would seem to leave the way open for all residents of retirement homes to treat some portion of their costs as medical expenses. A reasonable basis for allocation would seem to be a statement from the retirement home specifying the amount which the home considers as allocable to medical care.

If you are in a nursing home, the entire cost should be deductible as a medical expense, assuming your stay is primarily for medical reasons.

If you are not in the nursing home primarily for medical reasons, it would seem that you can treat a portion of your costs as medical expenses in the same way that a resident of a retirement home does.

If you are among the rising millions of Americans following special diets prescribed by a doctor for health reasons, here are the key rules: The cost of the medical diet is deductible if the prescribed food and drink are in addition to the ordinary diet. The cost is not deductible if the medical diet is just a substitute for other food which is normally consumed and if it satisfies nutritional requirements.

In a 1966 case, the Tax Court held that the cost of a diabetic's special diet prescribed by a physician did not qualify as a medical expense; despite the physician's statement that the diabetic diets were in addition to his patient's nutritional needs, the court ruled that the diet foods were a substitute and a source of nutrition. In a 1965 case, a court held that a high protein diet prescribed by a physician also was a substitute for the patient's normal diet and not a deductible item.

Tomorrow: Auto expenses.

Like so many converts the Gorths have no patience with skeptics. "What! not believe in the new washday miracle?" Bill will ask. "Why man, you might as well deny the existence of twice as much antiperspirant power. You might as well say there is no crunchiness goodness flavor-packed into every wholesome kernel of springtime freshness."

Nothing irritates Bill Gorth more than someone's pointing out that he talks like a fool. "Of course I talk like a fool," he says. "Cora Sue and I both talk like fools. It is our way of being absolutely loyal to our beliefs. Look, this whole neighborhood, this whole city, this whole country is swarming with people who practice the same faith we do. The only difference is that they're ashamed of it. It conceals their shame if they can laugh at the language of the channels, but it doesn't stop them from living by the message. Cora Sue and I believe in being perfectly honest about our faith."

"Fabulous," says Cora Sue. "Twice as much fool-exposure power too."

Happiness to Bill and Cora Sue is belief in faster starting, brighter laundry, quicker relief, fresher smoke, longer protection, shinier floors, crunchier goodness, crispier chips, sexier lips, slimmer hips and happier trips.

"As a religion," says Bill, "I'll admit it's not much, but at least it is suited to today's world."

"Fabulous," says Cora Sue. "Twice as much fun as that old moralizing too."

We have been hearing for a year or more about the housing shortage in Warren County, does it make any sense to make it worse? One also wonders what is going to happen to the County Taxes when they loose all that taxable property. Why do they keep saying they need more tax money for this or that when they take what taxable property they do have and build roads on them? Almost everyone knows a piece of property with a HOME on it is worth more in taxes than vacant property.

Dear Editor:

In answer to your Saturday editorial the people of Starbrick are not fighting the construction of the new road but they fail to see the sense of putting so many people out of their homes when there is so much unused open land right across the highway that could be used. The reason they waited so long to protest was they didn't know until a short time ago just how much of a land grab they were taking.

Nothing irritates Bill Gorth more than someone's pointing out that he talks like a fool. "Of course I talk like a fool," he says. "Cora Sue and I both talk like fools. It is our way of being absolutely loyal to our beliefs. Look, this whole neighborhood, this whole city, this whole country is swarming with people who practice the same faith we do. The only difference is that they're ashamed of it. It conceals their shame if they can laugh at the language of the channels, but it doesn't stop them from living by the message. Twice As Much 'Power'

WASHINGTON — Bill and Cora Sue Gorth are different from most young couples nowadays. For one thing they talk just the way people in television commercials talk. You know, no pronouns in front of their verbs and lots of imbecilic gushing about scouring powder and cuticle softener.

"Fabulous," says Cora Sue. "Twice as much happiness power as my old sink scourer," or "softens cuticle twice as fast as my old softening product," and so on. At first it makes your flesh crawl to hear them.

They are not to be laughed away, however, for in an age when man's natural unhappiness is heightened by loss of religious faith the Gorths have found happiness through faith in television. "Absolute faith in the doctrine of materialism as revealed on Channels 2, 4, 5, 7, 9 and 20," says Bill, "has made a new person of me."

"Fabulous," says Cora Sue. "Twice as much happiness power as my old faith product."

Bill's conversion began one day when, listless, Vietnam-weary and tired of his marriage, he sat in the evening traffic jam slouched at the wheel of his Hummobile. "Suddenly," he says, "I realized that it wasn't happening. When I got home that night I told Cora Sue, 'we've got to find something that will make it happen.' That night Channel 4 spoke to me for the first time. 'Rhinceros makes it happen,' Channel 4 said."

Bill immediately bought a sporty new rhinceros with the sleek roach-tail "runk line and synchro-glandular transmission on the tape deck, and that very afternoon it happened. Ten women threw themselves at his roach-tail trunk, his wife fell in love with him again, the afternoon traffic jam dissolved and Bill's biceps became 5 inches larger.

"Fabulous," Cora Sue recalls. "Twice as much cigarette consumption as my old marriage product too."

Seeing Bill's new happiness, Cora Sue began taking instruction from Channel 9. One night after Bill had hitched his rhinceros at the curb and fought off the beauties warming to kiss him, he entered the kitchen to find Cora Sue wearing a queen's crown. That afternoon, on instruction from Channel 9, she had quit greasing the bread with the high-priced spread and had switched to new improved gummod margarine.

Since that day both Gorths have become contented, if somewhat hysterical, people. This gives an odd quality to attempts to make conversation with them. Commonplace conversational gambits such as, "Why am I so miserable all the time?" bring answers such as, "It's that old product you're using on your hair, friend. Can't stand the wind - tunnel test. Leaves a thick ugly coat of grease on your forehead. Try new improved scalp mullage. Keeps hair neat all day long. Makes girls purr too."

"Fabulous," says Cora Sue. "Twice as much antismisery power too."

Like so many converts the Gorths have no patience with skeptics. "What! not believe in the new washday miracle?" Bill will ask. "Why man, you might as well deny the existence of twice as much antiperspirant power. You might as well say there is no crunchiness goodness flavor-packed into every wholesome kernel of springtime freshness."

Market Snaps Back In Sizable Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The tight spring of the stock market Wednesday snapped back to a sizable technical rally despite some doleful news. Trading was heavy.

After three straight sessions of sharp decline, the market staged a pretty good recovery—but not as wide as any one of the three preceding days of big losses.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.61 to 837.38.

Of 1,484 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 788 rose and 480 fell. New highs for 1967-'68 totaled 6 and new 55.

Volume was 11.39 million shares compared with 10.83 million Tuesday.

The logic of the recovery was peculiarly that of Wall Street. The market has been sinking mainly because of a crisis in confidence on the international front. Business and economic news has been good on the whole.

The market rallied from the start and widened its gains but backed away nervously on news that an unnamed U.S. Navy plane had been shot down by the Red Chinese. The atmosphere was muddled further by some testimony of Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board in Washington and by another of the long series of blasts against Martin by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex.

At the same time, the chairman of the nation's largest bank, the Bank of America, raised the possibility of extending federal reserve control to all sectors of the credit market.

In spite of all the disquieting reports, the market chose this day to rally "technically." The feeling was that the list was "oversold" and that it would haul itself up by its bootstraps even before hitting the heralded downside support level of $20 in the Dow Industrials.

The higher-priced glamor stocks, as always, paced the recovery as they have led the way on the downturn.

The New York Stock Exchange index advanced 58 cents to $50.32.

The resilience of the market was such that 13 of the 15 most active stocks advanced while two declined.

Wide recoveries were also made in a rising market on the American Stock Exchange.

PB&T Declares 50c Dividend

For the first quarter of 1968 The Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company will pay a dividend of 50 cents per share. The dividend was declared by the board of directors at its regular monthly meeting held in Titusville Tuesday.

The dividend is payable March 20 to stockholders of record March 8, and is the same as was paid in the first quarter of last year. However more dividend dollars will be distributed March 20 than were distributed a year ago because of the five per cent stock dividend voted by the stockholders in December of last year and paid to stockholders in January of this year.

LBJ on Resources

The following report was furnished by the National Wildlife Federation in a recent release to its National Affairs Committee. Strain on the Nation's economy for war-related expenses was reflected in the Federal budget proposed by the President 1/29/68 for fiscal 1969, beginning July 1, in his annual Budget Message to the Congress. The 1969 budget of $186.1 billion contains modest proposals for resources agencies, including some encouraging surprises as well as disappointments. "After carefully weighing priorities, I am proposing three kinds of actions: first, I have carefully examined the broad range of defense and civilian needs, and am proposing the selective expansion of existing programs or the inauguration of new programs only as necessary to meet those urgent requirements whose fulfillment we cannot delay; second, I am proposing delays and deferrals in existing programs, wherever this can be done without sacrificing vital national objectives; third, I am proposing basic changes, reforms, or reductions designed to lower the budgetary cost of a number of Federal programs which in their present form, no longer effectively meet the needs of today," the President explained.

Environmental contamination was listed high among the problems singled out by the President. He said his budget provides selective increases for a number of urgent domestic programs "particularly: manpower training, model cities, programs to control the rising crime rate, family planning and health care for mothers and infants, air and water pollution control, and research in better methods of education, and assistance in increasing the supply of qualified teachers" (emphasis supplied). The increases for these programs, however, were modest.

Major among the cuts were highway and other construction and in agricultural program reforms, limiting them to practices with long-term benefits.

Proposes Aid to Programs

The President's comments on natural resources: "Natural resources—Federal programs to protect and develop our natural resources help strengthen our economic base and provide recreational opportunity for an expanding population. The 1969 budget calls for deferral of some lower priority resource activities. But adequate provision has been made to: Protect our forests, conserve our fish and wildlife, and develop our mineral resources; acquire new recreation areas; clean up the Nation's water; and continue water resource development.

"Construction costs have been rising sharply in recent years—by 5 per cent in 1966 and 6 per cent in 1967. To reduce the impact of Federal construction activities on the economy, I am recommending that ongoing water resource projects be continued at minimum rates. In many cases this will require a delay in present construction schedules. New water resource development projects of the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Department of Agriculture, which had been recommended for starting in 1968 or had been added by the Congress, will be started over the 2-year period, 1968 and 1969. A small number of additional projects will be proposed for starting in 1969.

"The Water Resources Council is developing a more appropriate interest rate to be applied in formulating and evaluating water projects. The revised rate will be related to the average estimated current cost to the Treasury of long-term borrowing. It will be higher than the rate now in use for project evaluation. The new rate will be applied to future projects in order to assure the most effective use of Federal funds in the development of the Nation's water resources.

"Legislation to establish a National Water Commission is already before the Congress and is essential if we are to deal more effectively with the Nation's critical water problems.

"We must also take steps to safeguard our scenic and historic areas and anticipate the resource needs of future generations. Legislation has been proposed and should be enacted promptly to authorize: the Redwoods National Park in northern California; the North Cascades National Park and National Recreation Area in the State of Washington; the Apostle Islands National Lakeshore in Wisconsin; a National Scenic Rivers System; a Nationwide System of Trails; and the Central Arizona Project.

"I also recommend legislation to: augment the revenues of the Land and Water Conservation Fund by use of part of the mineral leasing receipts from the Outer Continental Shelf; and establish a Federal-State system for regulation of surface mining operations."

Eyebrows are being raised over one of the President's comments about reductions and reforms in the field of transportation. A summary lists cuts of $7 million and $14 million for 1968 and 1970, respectively, to impose a tax on users of waterways. "I am also proposing a broad program of transportation user charges to apply the test of the marketplace to these activities, and to relieve the general taxpayer of some of the burdens of financing special benefits for certain individuals and industries," he said. Speculation exists over whether he is planning to impose user fees for navigational facilities on waterways, traditionally a free avenue of commerce.

Highlights of the Budget

Major highlights in the Budget:

—The Bureau of Outdoor Recreation is recommended for $130 million for the Land and Water Conservation Fund to finance state and federal programs for outdoor recreation. This represents an increase of $10,825,741 over what was appropriated for the current fiscal year. Broken down, it is proposed that the Federal agencies get $62 million for acquisition of land and water areas, plus $3 million for program administration. Thus, $65 million would be apportioned to the States. This is in new obligatory authority. Actually, the expenditures would amount to $155 million, including carryovers.

—Federal grants to cities for the construction of waste treatment plants would be increased by $22 million to $225 million. While this amount would be the most ever allowed, it is far short of the $700 million authorized for the year by recent amendments to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

—An advance emergency appropriation of $7.5 million, same as granted last year, would be added to the anticipated income of $5 million from the sale of Migratory Bird Hunting Stamps (duck stamps) for the acquisition of waterfowl wetlands.

—The Federal air pollution control program would be upped to $80 million but also short of the new authorization.

Boat Owner Making Last Stand Against Federals

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Jake Pete's last stand has all the emotional appeal of a crusade in Minnesota's North Woods country.

To U.S. government attorneys, Pete is known as "the last holdout" in the acquisition of land for the Boundary Waters Canoe Area, BWCA, along the Minnesota-Canada border. Jacob L. Pete, 71, Ely, Minn., businessman, is known to resorters and tourists as the staunch defender of the private business he carved out of the wilderness over 35 years.

The government is removing commercial interests from the BWCA, encompassing more than a million acres. It is rugged woods country, pocked by an almost indeterminate number of lakes.

Pete is fighting to keep his four large houseboats on Basswood Lake. He has resigned himself to losing his 80 acres in the BWCA.

The government can't take Pete's boats off the lake, and he can't operate them unless he has somewhere to dock them. Therein lies the impasse.

The issue was to come up in January, but was delayed until the May term of U.S. District Court here to provide more time for negotiations.

"We've spent the best part of our life building this up," Pete said. "The boats are too big to take out of the lake, and even if we could take them out, there's no place in this area to take them."

NO WONDER THEY WIN!

RECORD 60 LAST FRIDAY HELPED

Bob Burlingame Reaches 30-Point Average Again

Eisenhower's Bob Burlingame surpassed all expectations last week as he scored 60 points against the East Forest Bears to move his county scoring lead to 70 points. Burlingame moved his total to 489 points, with the closest contender being Sheffield's Wayne Swanson with 419.

Burlingame hit the 30-point average for the second time this year, pulling through with a 30.6, exactly the same reading he held the first week in January.

The cager broke the Blue and Gold individual scoring record by 12 points and it is believed, although not confirmed, that his 60 points were the most ever scored by one player in a single game in the Upper Allegheny Valley League.

Swanson, who held the county scoring lead for three weeks, came out with a 22.1 average. Denny Walton of Youngsville remains in third place with 325 points and a 17.1 average.

The third highest average, however, goes to Tidioute's Ed Ziegler who has scored 271 points in the 15 Bulldog contests giving him an 18.1 reading.

Several cagers switched places, but only by a few points. Jeff Scallie (307) edged Tim Allen (303) and Dan Krumm (222) squeezed past Tom Burling (220).

The county record still stands below the 500 mark as the 5-4 slate combined by the five squads last week now gives a 45-46 reading.

Sheffield remains in first place with a 15-4 record, while Eisenhower stands second with a 10-9 slate. Youngsville claims the third spot with a 9-10 reading and Warren ranks fourth with a 8-11 overall slate.

The Wolverines also hold honors in the scoring department, posting a 327 point edge over their opponents, 1,607-1,180. The Knights have scored 1,324 points while allowing their opponents 1,302, a 22-point edge. Youngsville carries the slimmest margin on a 1,252 to 1,245 scoring mark.

Warren trails its opponents by 90 points, 1,101-1,191, and Tidioute's 3-12 record gives their opponents 429 points over the Bulldogs, 850-1,279.

With only three cage nights left, area league standings have tightened. The Knights stand 6-3 in the UAVL for second place, where they most likely will remain unless someone beats Pleasantville.

Warren's 6-5 reading in Section II puts them in third place, but things still are wide open.

Irvinedale Defeats Lacy in Gra-Y Tilt

Irvinedale evened its second half record in Gra-Y Basketball League competition at 1-1 yesterday by dumping Lacy, 19-7.

Dave Walters was high scorer for Irvinedale with 10 points. Steve Collins hit for six and Dan Dangelo added three.

For Lacy, Steve Fisher had three points and Kim Huber and Jeff McClement each tallied two.

St. Bona Trips Seton Hall in Overtime 81-71

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Bill Butler's three-point play after 20 seconds of overtime triggered unbeaten and fourth-ranked St. Bonaventure to an 81-71 basketball victory Wednesday night over lowly Seton Hall, a 12-time loser.

It was the 18th triumph of the season for the Bonnies, who blew an 11-point lead in the last 12 minutes of regulation time and played the final eight minutes without Bob Lanier, their 6-foot-11 center.

After Butler's basket gave the Bonnies a 66-63 lead, Seton Hall scored a field goal, but Johnny Hayes made two free throws and then tapped in a rebound. A three-point play by Hayes with 2:14 remaining opened a 73-67 lead.

MAJOR LEAGUE ENTRY

Voters Approve New Stadium in Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Seattle sports fans voted this city into the major leagues Tuesday and are planning now for the where and the when and the profile of their $40 million all-weather stadium.

Twice before they struck out at the ballot box, but this time the electorate of King County hit a home run with a whopping 62.3 per cent majority approval of a bond proposition to fund the project.

The city was given an American League baseball franchise for 1969 on condition it provide a suitable stadium. The election outcome saved the league from becoming an Indian giver.

Major league football is expected to follow baseball's trail into the Pacific Northwest. For lack of a stadium, the region lost a chance for a National Football League expansion team in 1966 when the voters turned down a stadium issue. They had done the same in 1960.

The new stadium should be ready for use by 1971 or early 1972, said Joe Gandy, chairman of the State Stadium Commission appointed last year by Gov. Dan Evans. In the meantime, the Seattle baseball team will play in Sicks' Stadium, the only available plant, which is to be enlarged to seat 30,000.

Seattle will remain in the Pacific Coast League this summer — and then its new team will take over not only the PCL territory, but the PCL president, Dewey Soriano, He will be general manager for Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., owner of the new franchise.

The effect of the change on other PCL teams is unknown, but the coast league will have to be reimbursed for the loss of Seattle and any other territory.

End of Era For Garden Old-Timers

NEW YORK (AP) — They locked the doors for the last time at the old Madison Square Garden Wednesday and for many old-timers on the staff it marked the end of an era.

But for others, it signalled the beginning of a new life as they prepared to move their base of operations 15 blocks south to the new Garden.

"I'm heading down there," said Dominick Paradiso, who was on hand when the old Garden opened on Nov. 28, 1925. "I'll miss this old place, but working keeps me young, so I'll hang on as long as I can."

Paradiso, who is 75, has done all kinds of jobs for the Garden, from ushering to selling tickets. Right now, he is a guard. He is the only member of the staff who was an employee on opening day in 1925.

"In fact," he recalled, "I started out in 1921 at the Garden that preceded the 8th Avenue Garden. Our first event was a six-day bike race."

Two of the men who rode in that race, Harry Horan and Willie Keller, are listed as ushers on the Garden staff.

"We had 75 men come over to this Garden in 1925," said Paradiso, "and I'm the only one still alive."

Like most of the veterans, his most vivid recollections are of the would-be gate crashers.

"I guess you could say we have heard every excuse in the world from gate crashers," he laughed. "We really got them at fights. Some guys said they were managers of fighters on the card. Others would tell us they left their car keys with their brother inside. But they didn't know where brother was."

Richard Esau, chief of security for the past 18 years, said he will miss the old place.

Esau, who was a lieutenant with the New York City Police Department before he came to the garden, also had humorous recollections of crashers.

"One guy came up to the front gate," he said, "and tried to get in without a ticket. The ticket taker told him he would have to have one, and he said: 'All right, if you don't trust me, keep my newspaper until I come back.'"

REALLY 'CHIP' SHOT

Not too much worry about the downhill spin on the ninth green at the Lake George, N.Y., Polar Icecap Open Golf Tournament held last Saturday, but you may have to go diving to retrieve your ball. The 18-hole tourney is believed to be the first held on the frozen surface of a lake.

Referee Vern Buffey crashes to the ice as he gets his skates locked with the Bruins' John Bucyk during third period action of a Boston-St. Louis Blues NHL game earlier this week. It was a rough night for Buffey, who fell down twice and got hit on the head with the puck. The game ended in a 3-3 tie.

Long Island Keeps Top Small Ranking

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The road is getting tougher but Long Island University continues to roll along undefeated and on top of The Associated Press' small college basketball poll.

Coach Roy Rubin's Blackbirds ran their unbeaten streak to 16. Norfolk State, which had won all of its previous 16 games, lost to Delaware State 129-103. But the game was forfeited later to Norfolk State because Delaware State had used an ineligible player.

Long Island beat Rider 55-52 and Hofstra 72-65 last week. Evansville, runnerup a week ago, was toppled by third-ranked Kentucky Wesleyan, 87-78, in overtime and lost its No. 2 spot to the Kentuckians.

In the poll, based on games through last Saturday, LIU received 11 of 15 first-place ballots and 139 points. Kentucky Wesleyan, 14-3, took second with one first-place vote and 111 points. Evansville, 16-3, collected 100 points and is third.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records through games of Sat., Feb. 10, and total points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

NEW YORK—The track coach of a local college, a youngish man, says he has "hated everything the New York Athletic Club stands for" since his own youth as a runner, decided last week to enter his team in Friday night's embattled track meet. His team is young and inexperienced, he reasoned, and he is relatively new on the job. Without high-level competition, he said, none of them would ever learn and improve. He insisted that his decision was strictly professional and, yes, he admitted, expedient. Once he made it, however, he still had to sit down with the best runner on one of his relay teams, a Negro, and explain why it would be better if he stayed home. The coach said the Negro understood; for "social" reasons it would be better if he didn't have to cross a picket line of other black men.

This, perhaps, is the ultimate perversion of a situation that began developing 100 years ago when the N.Y.A.C. became, it is believed, the country's first amateur athletic club. A club historian, writing in 1892, commented: "Nothing rivets the bonds of friendship more closely than companionship in exercise and the spirit of manly rivalry and emulation which such companionship engenders." The club was instrumental in the formation of the Amateur Athletic Union, and to this day is considered a cornerstone of amateur athletics in America. This, of course, is the reason why the boycott is justified.

Through most of the club's history, New York City was overwhelmingly white, and amateur athletics predominantly white Christian. The club was, and is, a current member points out, "a product of the white community." In recent years, the complexion of the city and of amateur athletics has darkened considerably, but the N.Y.A.C. has remained lily white. "A club is like a white neighborhood," says a man who has belonged to the club for 26 years. "You don't sell your house to a Negro without being marked lousy."

On several occasions the membership committee has turned down the applications of Negroes, sponsored by members. On several occasions, the Board of Governors, which must pass on athletic members, has turned down dark-skinned athletes sponsored by team coaches.

One N.Y.A.C. member says that there has always been a struggle for power and funds between the socially oriented and the athletically oriented cliques in the 9,500-member club. He believes that if the athletic people were in greater control there would be a few black athletic members (a non-voting status allowing all privileges for a nominal fee during the years of competition and, in the case of a champion, perhaps a few years more). But there would still be, he says, no black regular members.

"The advantage of a private club," says one socially oriented member, "is the right to select your elbow-mate at the bar. I don't see what the club can do about the problems of minority groups when the federal government hasn't made many inroads."

The current boycott is not the first. In 1962, Jackie Robinson urged Negro and Jewish athletes to boycott the meet, but the times were not ready. The move did awaken the political community to the club's discriminatory customs, however, and Robert Wagner, then New York's mayor, publicly resigned. But the main issue was avoided, and, in fact, beclouded. The leaders of the current boycott are not trying to get a place at the N.Y.A.C. bar. They want a place in the pool.

Two of the country's most important athletic officials, Dan Ferris of the A.A.U. and Asa Bushnell of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, both stressed the importance of the club's generous contributions to Olympic fund drives, its sponsorship of junior development and senior meets, and its own fine teams which are pre-eminent in a number of sports. Both Ferris and Bushnell, neither of whom are regular N.Y.A.C. members, agree that the club's power bred more power in amateur sports to the point where loss of N.Y.A.C. support now would "materially damage amateur sports."

"If N.Y.A.C. members are a little mystified at this boycott and the 'poor reward for all we've done for them,' perhaps they have a right to question the A.A.U., the E.C.A.C. and the sports and recreation agencies of the city, state and federal government that have allowed one club to bear the burden. This, too, is expediency. But this is also 1963. Any private organization that sponsors public events and sponsors teams that directly feed our national athletic squads must be free from customs that would be unconstitutional, illegal and un-American in public organizations. There are clubs in this city whose customs are far more vicious and discriminatory, but they do not send red-shirted legions through the playing fields of our nation, exhibiting a strength, skill, health and 'spirit of manly rivalry' that is only available to some Americans.

East German Says Luge Gals Framed

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — East German Olympic chief Manfred Ewald accused the West Germans of framing his girl luge racers Wednesday and getting them disqualified from the Olympics on grounds of heating their sled runners.

Ewald and three girl lugers involved denied at a press conference that they or any of the East German team had anything to do with heating the runners.

In accusing the West Germans of a plot against his team, Ewald and the three girl lugers involved did not explain how they had influenced the Swiss Italian and Polish race officials who were the principal figures in the disqualification decision at Villard-de-Lans, site of the luge races, Tuesday.

Shortly after the press conference, a West German Olympic spokesman said his delegation was considering a formal protest to the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

He said the charge was completely untrue and had to be countered in some form.

McDermott Takes Silver Medal in Speed Skating

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — America's surprisingly successful skaters, citing their best to smooth over the deluge of disappointment that struck U.S. Alpine skiers, sparked again Wednesday as Terry McDermott captured one medal and Tim Wood closed in on another in the Winter Olympics.

McDermott of Birmingham, Mich., the 1964 Olympic 500-meter speed skating champion, but given little chance to place this year, overcame a three-year retirement and poor ice to win a silver medal in the event. Despite his 46th and last starting position, the gritty 27-year-old McDermott sped through pools of water in many sections and tied Magne Thomassen of Norway for second place in 40.5 seconds.

Erhard Keller of West Germany, a 23-year-old dental student who has the pending world mark of 39.2, won the gold medal in 40.3.

"I didn't come back to the Olympics just to skate," said McDermott, a sales representative, who was a barber before the 1964 Olympics. "I wanted to win a medal."

Wood, the U.S. men's figure skating champion from Bloomfield Hills, Mich., sent American hopes soaring anew a few hours later by jumping into second place with the completion of the five compulsory figures.

Wood trailed only Wolfgang Schwarz of Austria, who became the heavy favorite following the shocking collapse of his countryman, Emmerich Danzer. The world champion who figured for a certain gold medal plummeted from first after Tuesday's first two figures to fourth with virtually no chance of winning a gold or silver medal.

Wood looked a solid bet to pick up the United States' seventh medal, all won by the skaters—Peggy Fleming's gold, three silvers and a bronze by the women speed skaters and McDermott's.

"These figures are the best he ever has done in a major international competition," said Wood's father, Dr. Kennedy A. Wood. "We are real excited because we feel Tim can make it to the top."

Schwarz has 1,006.6 points to Wood's 992.4.

However, the U.S. pairs figure skating team of Cynthia and Ronald Kauffman of Seattle, Wash., finished a disappointing sixth as Russians won the gold and silver medals.

The brother and sister team, U.S. champions, were fifth after the compulsory figures Sunday and began well in the free skating Wednesday but faltered.

Ludmila Belousova and Oleg Protopopov, Russia's husband and wife team, successfully defended their 1964 gold medal with a virtually flawless performance that had the crowd roaring.

The U.S. Alpine team, hit by injuries, waxing errors, disqualifications and falls, has been blanketed going into the final events this weekend—the men's special slalom and the women's giant slalom.

Jean-Claude Killy of France, with the downhill and giant slalom gold medals already in his pocket, took aim at an Alpine sweep Wednesday as he led qualifiers for the two-heat slalom with a run of 49.89.

Americans Billy Kidd of Seattle, Jim Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif., Spider Sabich of Kyburz, Calif., and Rick Chaffee of Rutland, Vt., also qualified.

The U.S. men's 4 x 10-kilometer cross country relay team finished as expected, 12th in the field of 15, in another final Wednesday.

Norway won the event for its second gold medal in Nordic competition.

In the meeting room, the International Bobsled Federation rejected a West German request that two gold medals be awarded in the two-man bobsled.

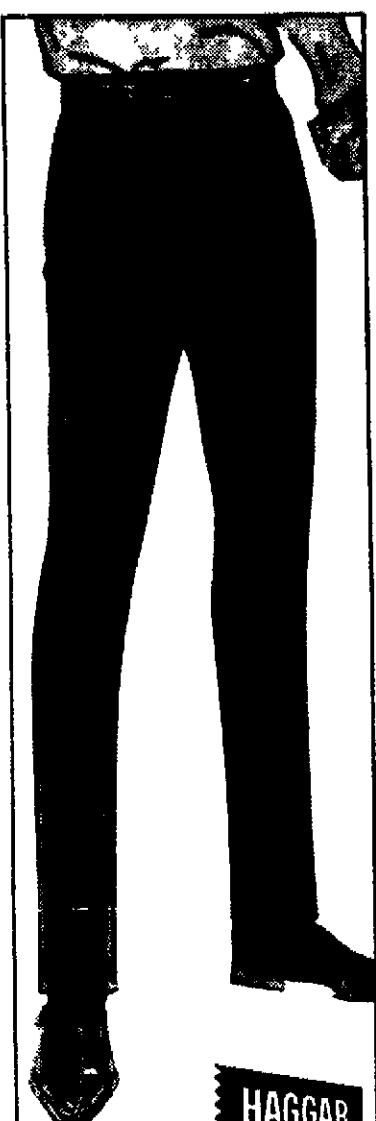

The International Olympic Committee awarded the medal to Eugenio Monti and Luciano De Paolis Sunday despite an identical time with the West German team of Horst Floth and Peppi Bader. Monti's team was given the gold on the strength of making the fastest single run.

The U.S. and eight other countries asked the International Luge Federation to bar the entire East German squad from further competition after three East German girls were disqualified for heating the runners of their luges, illegal under the rules.

The Johnson-Daley Axis

WASHINGTON—With most of the world in turmoil, it is nice to know that politics goes on as usual. And the big, unnoticed political development this winter is the formation of a new Johnson-Daley axis. The astute Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago has some of the survival value of a wily old bull elephant, which he rather resembles. Hence he is now the last of the once-numerous herd of big Northern Democratic bosses. He used to be distrusted by President Johnson, as a Kennedy man from way-back. The President, moreover, has never felt at home among his party's Northern leaders.

Despite these obstacles, the Johnson-Daley axis has come into being, one may guess, through the friendship broking of Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien. The outward sign and symbol of this major step forward by the President was the announcement by Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner that he would not run for re-election. This announcement must be intimately linked to the forthcoming retirement of the long-suffering director of the poverty program, Sargent Shriver. Having served without complaint on a rough battle front, Shriver was first offered the ambassadorship of Paris—vacated, after such long, brilliantly distinguished service by Charles E. Bohlen. But Shriver's real aim is to enter elective politics in his home state.

Furthermore, both Mr. Johnson and Mayor Daley have a lively common interest in putting up the best possible ticket in Illinois this year. It is one of the big Northern states that the President really has to carry in order to be re-elected; and Daley also wants to go on having a friend in the governor's chair.

Shriver, who is close to Daley, has all the makings of a glamor-candidate for the governorship; and running for governor has always been Shriver's ultimate aim. If Gov. Kerner had insisted on running for re-election, however, it would obviously have been impossible to run Shriver, too.

Kerner's initial asking-price for gently bowing out is rumored to have been very high, indeed—nothing less than the secretary of defense or the next place on the Supreme Court, in fact. It will be interesting, therefore, to see just what (if anything) the governor receives when, and if, the President wins another term.

At any rate, Kerner's promised retirement opens the way for a strikingly strong Democratic ticket in Illinois. One may guess that Shriver will head the state ticket as the gubernatorial candidate, with Adlai Stevenson III assigned to the more uphill fight for the Senate seat, against the hardy old perennial, Everett Dirksen.

By these transactions, the President and Daley have got all the Illinois ducks quite beautifully in a row. For Mr. Johnson's sake, in truth, it is too bad that comparably neat and promising arrangements cannot easily be made in the rest of the large Northern industrial states that also have great importance to him.

Yet the new Johnson-Daley axis by no means stops there. It is known, for instance, that Daley was consulted, not by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy himself, but by some of those silly people who wished the senator to commit political suicide by becoming an anti-Johnson candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The mayor replied, with the voice of elephantine common sense, that he wanted no part in a Kennedy suicide attempt, since he thought the senator had a great career before him; and that Illinois would, therefore, be solid for Lyndon Johnson in 1968. By the same token, it is also known that the mayor was consulted by the President about the right response to the pseudo-candidacy of Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

The initial White House reaction had been to start going after the "Kennedy-McCarthy crowd" with hammer and tongs. The phrase, though totally misleading, was actually used in public by the President, himself. Daley instead counseled a take-no-notice approach that is now being followed.

It is amusing to contemplate these two powerful old political animals, the President and the mayor, meeting at last, as it were, in the middle of the bridge of past events that separated them for so long.

Mayor Daley, after all, was perhaps the single most important figure in John F. Kennedy's drive for the nomination in 1968. And that is the sort of thing that is rarely forgotten by Lyndon B. Johnson, who also has his elephantine side and, in particular, an elephant's memory for past wounds and slights.

Yet it is also significant that these two are now working together. It means that behind the scenes the President is doing a lot more to promote his own re-election than most people imagine.

Washington Goes Up in Smoke Over Antismoking Posters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kingfish Cohen is looking for an angel. Not the heavenly kind, but one with the real green.

He needs cash, he says, without strings attached, to continue the fight for peace in the Negro ghettos of Philadelphia while building hope for its frustrated, militant, unemployed, uneducated youth.

Otherwise, he fears that this summer, unlike the last, racial rioting may tear Philadelphia apart. He means by burning and looting, baby.

Kingfish claims he helped avert violence during the 1967 hot summer "it was me, plus frequent weekend rains and a tough but good police commissioner."

His legal name is Benjamin Cohen. He's Negro and he's Jewish "and I wouldn't be anything else for all the tea in China."

The 33-year-old Kingfish has four kids and owns a small junk and hauling business in the heart of the North Philadelphia ghetto "where the youth gangs control the turf and keep the people uneasy in a climate of fear."

Last summer there was violence in 126 American towns resulting in 117 deaths, more than 16,000 arrests and property damage of over 160 million.

Kingfish, determined that the nation's fourth largest city wouldn't have a repeat of the 1964 rioting, organized the Knights of the Mystic Sea, Lodge No. 1. He frankly admits stealing the name from the Amos 'n Andy radio show.

Membership is free and the headquarters is Kingfish's backyard clubhouse. By summer's end it was a peaceful hangout for members of 53 of the city's toughest gangs. He has signatures in a 25-cent notebook showing more than 3,500 guys and gals had been in his place one or more times.

Cohen's Knights never had clubhouse trouble. To ensure peace Kingfish created his own Mystic Police (MP's), composed of the toughest toughs from the strongest gangs.

"Man, we had it cool all the time," he says.

The fun and games, involving several hundred young people every night, continued into the early winter. Cold weather forced at least temporary closing of his unheated clubhouse.

Now Cohen wants to get some agency, or the city, or the school board to come up with money to provide a bigger meeting place and solid programs that would steer school dropouts to jobs and renewed education.

But he wants total independence.

"These cats won't go for anything that smacks of control, especially by outside whites," says Kingfish. "They want to do it on their own."

Kingfish promises to move ahead "if there's someone with guts enough to provide the dough with no strings attached."

Shrine Luncheon

Shriners are reminded of the Warren County Shrine Club luncheon at the Penn Laurel Motel on Friday. All Shriners are welcome.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nasty little backstage Washington wrangle went into those antismoking posters soon to adorn the sides of U.S. mail trucks.

By all accounts of reliable government sources Wednesday:

The President was irked. The secretary of agriculture was unhappy.

The postmaster general was harassed and nearly sued. The surgeon general was stubborn.

Tobacco-land congressmen were smoking-mad.

And even as the posters prepare to go up, it's virtually impossible to tell who won. The dispute already has cost the Department of Health, Education and Welfare half of February—the month it had reserved to use the mail trucks to tell Americans:

"100,000 doctors have quit smoking cigarettes. (Maybe they know something you don't.)"

The Public Health Service designed the poster. The Post Office Department's role, a spokesman said, was simply to make sure that it was water-proof and of proper size.

All went serenely until the end of January, when the Associated Press carried a two-paragraph

As a result of the skirmish, the posters also will carry a newly printed sticker informing poster-watchers that the 100,000 doctors are an "estimate based on surveys by National Opinion Research Center and (U.S.) Public Health Service."

"I thought I'd been exposed to lobbies in this town before," one harried administration official said. "But this tobacco outfit is something else again."

Nobody foresaw controversy last autumn, when Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner wrote Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien to reserve one side of 53,000 mail trucks for this month.

The Agriculture Department, which is spending $3.5 million a year for tobacco research, took no official position. But one informant reported Secretary Orville L. Freeman was "hopping mad" at the poster idea—coming as it did during his agency's efforts to reach some scientific conclusions about the possible health hazards of smoking.

Lawyers who contacted the Post Office Department represented the American Tobacco Institute. The institute is headed by Earle C. Clements, Democratic former governor of Kentucky, former U.S. senator, and coordinator of Lyndon B. Johnson's 1960 campaign for vice president.

No. 1 Hurricane Chaser Met First One at Age of 6

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — When Robert H. Simpson was 6 years old, he swam for his life in the boiling tides of a hurricane that smashed without warning across the coast of South Texas. It was a terrifying experience that was to set the course of his life. For 25 years, he has fought a running battle with the tropic tempests, probing for their secrets, constantly seeking answers that will lead to more perfect forecasts.

The search was to lead the tall Texan to the hottest seat in the vast U.S. Weather Bureau system. He has taken over control of Miami's National Hurricane Center.

To him has fallen the ticklish task of telling residents along Atlantic, Gulf and Caribbean shores just where and when a hurricane will fall upon a coastline. He must try to tell them at least 24 hours ahead of a storm's arrival, so they can take steps necessary to save their lives.

"It's a challenge, sure enough," the 55-year-old Simpson says, "but if I hadn't wanted it, I wouldn't be here."

Simpson came from Washington, where he had been associate director of the Weather Bureau, and worked in Miami through the 1967 season with Dr. Gordon E. Dunn. He moved into command as Dunn retired.

Simpson has experienced many storms but the one that remains most vividly in his memory screamed into Corpus Christi, Tex., Sept. 14, 1919, just a few days after he had enrolled in the first grade at school.

It was Sunday, and young Simpson was preparing to sit down to dinner with his family, when his father looked out a window and saw a towering storm tide come rolling with express train speed across Corpus Christi Bay.

"Seconds later the house across the street was bowled off its foundation, and we got out of there fast," Simpson recalls. "The whole family swam across the backfence to the courthouse three blocks away and the seawater got deeper with every stroke."

The roof of the two-story school building crashed through to the basement and all who sought refuge there were killed. The records show that 300 to 600 died that wild day.

Out of this adventure, Simpson developed a fascination for the most destructive of all the world's storms. When he joined the Weather Bureau in 1940, after earning a master's degree in physics at Emory University, he asked to be assigned to hurricane work.

In 1956, he organized the National Hurricane Research Project at Palm Beach. During the three years he directed it, he flew into every hurricane that formed in the Atlantic every day of the storm's life.

It was in 1960, while he was working on his Ph.D. degree at the University of Chicago, that he got the idea for Project Stormfury, an experiment to determine whether man can tame the tropic storm.

The plan developed from a report by a Navy hurricane hunter who flew into Hurricane Donna in 1960. He said the air sucked up from the warm sea spiraled upward in a relatively small "chimney" rather than filling the entire eye of the storm.

"The chimney seemed to be the primary energy cell of the hurricane," Simpson said. "This suggested to me that if we seeded that chimney with silver iodide crystals, we would change the dynamics of the storm."

In September 1961, Hurricane Esther was doused with a single shot of 120 pounds of crystals. Hot moisture fueling the storm collected around the crystals, froze and fell. And, for a short time, Esther's eye expanded outward and 10 per cent of the punch went out of her circling winds.

In 1963, Hurricane Beulah was seeded with the same results. But Simpson makes no definite claims, because winds often rise and fall dramatically in a matter of minutes as a hurricane pulses like a gigantic heart.

But when the next attack on a hurricane comes—this time a massive assault by a fleet of planes hitting the storm again and again—Simpson says: "I think the chances are very good, approaching 50-50, that we will find something useful can be done to a hurricane. I think we will downgrade it in a fashion that will not eliminate, but will limit, the damage it does."

Washington Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The man who runs the census says the nation should have a head count every five years instead of 10.

A. Ross Eckler, director of the U.S. Census Bureau, told a Senate committee government agencies at all levels need more up-to-date statistics than those gathered once a decade.

Eckler endorsed a pending proposal to count the population every five years starting in 1975. The next regular census already is scheduled for 1970.

The bill has been passed by the House and is in the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee. Sen. Daniel Brewster, D-Md., presiding at Wednesday's hearing, said he knew of no substantial opposition to the proposal.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., D-Va., called on the Johnson administration Wednesday to reappraise its Vietnam policies and "develop a sense of urgency" toward ending the war.

Byrd suggested in an interview the Haiphong harbor should be blocked, possibly by sinking an old and unneeded U.S. ship in the channel to the North Vietnamese port.

He told the Senate after a tour of his state he feels the national leadership has lost the confidence of the public in handling the war in Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve units will help transport the 10,500 fresh combat troops being rushed to duty in Vietnam, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said Wednesday.

He told the Senate the stand-by airmen had responded to a call from the Defense Department for sufficient volunteers to fly 115 round trips.

Capital Quote
"In each case we found agitation before, during and after the riots, but not any planned conspiracy. As far as we can tell, all broke out spontaneously."

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders, commenting on last summer's racial rioting.

Capital Footnotes
President Johnson signed Wednesday a proclamation inviting the American people to observe February—now half over—as American history month.

An exhibition of more than 150 French paintings will open in Washington Sunday at the start of a year-long U.S. tour which also includes showings in New York, Chicago, Boston and San Francisco. "Paintings in France 1900-67" will include works of Picasso, Matisse, Chagall and other leading modern artists.

Tate Supports Income Tax To Aid Schools

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mayor James H. J. Tate said today he would lend his support to a graduated state income tax for school purposes.

Tate's statement came in response to a question by state Rep. Charles H. Dager, R-Montgomery, at a hearing of the state House Committee on Basic Education here.

He was also asked if Philadelphia would be forced to drop its wage tax in the event of a state income tax.

"I don't think that would be necessary," said Tate. "Both taxes would be possible."

State Rep. John H. Hamilton, R-Philadelphia, said the state Supreme Court ruled in 1935 that a graduated income tax would be unconstitutional in Pennsylvania.

He said the only way around that ruling would be to change the state constitution.

The mayor said more money is needed for schools because of additional burdens placed on the cities.

"If we keep getting saddled with training the poor and getting housing for the poor, the schools will have to go to the state for money," said Tate.

Tate said of the Philadelphia school's $184.8 million expenditures in 1966-67, 63 per cent were locally financed and 31 per cent came from the state. The rest came from federal funds or other sources.

Endorsed for delegate by the county chairmen were Dr. William L. Henning, professor emeritus of animal science at Penn State and former State Secretary of Agriculture; James Kees, publisher-editor of the Emporium Press-Independent; Edward Ellis, a consulting engineer from Oil City; and Fred Cusimano, an advertising executive in Warren.

The Rev. Alan R. Cleaton of State College was endorsed for the congressional seat of the 23rd district.

SAYLOR

5.1 Per Cent Of County Births Illegitimate

HARRISBURG—The State Department of Health said yesterday 5.1 per cent of the births in Warren County during 1966 have been classified as illegitimate births.

Significantly perhaps, this represents an upswing from the preceding year's 3.1 per cent illegitimacy rate for the county.

Broken down numerically, the year 1966 recorded 784 births in Warren County, of which number 40 were classified as illegitimate. In the preceding year births in the county totaled 816, with 25 in the illegitimate category.

How does Warren County compare with other counties in the state?

In 1966 the illegitimate birth rate for the state as a whole stood at 7.3 per cent (5.1 per cent for Warren County), while in 1965 the statewide average was 6.8 per cent (3.1 for Warren County)—which means that in both years the county was at least below the statewide average.

Throughout Pennsylvania as a whole, the number of illegitimate births in 1966 stood at 181,490, as against 14,379 illegitimate births, the department noted.

Incidentally, Warren County apparently had a fairly "healthy" crop of new babies during the year—with 726 of the total 784 new babies weighing in at five pounds, nine ounces or more which is classified as "mature." The number of newborn under this weight (immature) totaled 58.

ConCon Approves Appointment Of County Public Defenders

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Constitutional Convention approved Wednesday a proposal to establish the appointive office of public defender in all Pennsylvania counties.

The proposal, in the form of an amendment to a Local Government Committee article on county government, was introduced by House Minority Whip K. Leroy Irvis, D-Allegheny, an ex-officio convention delegate.

The amendment was adopted by a 75-60 vote.

Earlier, delegates had rejected a proposed amendment that would have made public defenders elected, constitutional officers. The vote was 62-78.

The local government proposal is the sixth of seven committee packages the convention must consider before it completes its work of revising four key sections of the state's 94-year-old Constitution.

LA Gov. Raymond J. Broderick, convention president, had said earlier that he hoped to move all seven proposals into position for final action by week's end.

That could mean delegates might be asked to meet Saturday to complete work on the Judiciary Committee's court reform plan.

"I would hope we could finish up by Friday night, but I would call a Saturday session if necessary," Broderick said.

By law, the convention must complete its work by Feb. 29. If Broderick's present timetable is met, the final deadline should present no problem, however.

The convention will take up the judiciary proposal after it completes consideration of the lengthy local government article. Debate on the court reform plan is expected to be extensive.

At a meeting Wednesday morning, the Judiciary Committee approved a proposal that would extend the present method of selecting the chief justice of the State Supreme Court by seniority for five years after the adoption of its reform plan.

If accepted by the full convention, the plan would permit Justice Michael A. Musmanno, next in line for the chief justice post, to serve one year.

The present chief justice, John C. Bell Jr., is to complete his term in 1972. Musmanno then would take over. After 1973, however, the Supreme Court justices would elect the chief justice.

The provision is part of a schedule listing the effective dates of proposed changes in the committee's proposal. The schedule must be approved along with the over-all proposal by the full convention.

Pittsburgh Could Have Riots This Summer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An expert on violence said Wednesday that Pittsburgh has less of a chance of being hit by large-scale racial riots than other metropolitan areas this summer.

But Dr. Ralph W. Conant said there is potential for a riot in Pittsburgh.

Conant, associate director of the Lemberg Center for the Study of Violence at Brandeis University, said Pittsburgh has civic and political leaders who work at improving Negro housing, employment and opportunity.

"Not on a grand scale, perhaps, but they seem to be able to keep one step ahead of the situation," he said.

Conant said studies show that the Negro in Pittsburgh is generally optimistic about the future but there is a hard core of dissatisfied whites.

He said 25 per cent of the white community believes events are moving too fast for the Negro and another 50 per cent is satisfied with the improvement pace.

"And this is in a city where things just aren't that fast," he said.

Conant said studies show that rioting has been sparked by "mostly noninstigated outbreaks of collective anger."

He said rioting could "go on for as long as 15 years. I can see the possibility that leadless rioting could turn into organized insurrections aimed at crippling the vitals of large cities."

PSEA Declares March 4 'Action for Education Day'

HARRISBURG—March 4 has been declared "Action for Education Day" by the Pennsylvania State Education Association (PSEA) in which school boards and teachers in the Commonwealth have been called upon to participate by staging a one-day "professional holiday" to emphasize the need for more state aid for schools and better teachers' salaries.

In reacting to the decision which came February 10 following a rousing three hour session of PSEA's House of Delegates in Harrisburg, PSEA President Joseph J. Standa reminded school boards and teachers that the motion asked school boards to reschedule the school calendar, with time to be made up later, and that the "professional holiday" would be legal and should not be labeled a strike.

Standa referred to PSEA attorney Lewis F. Adler's opinion which clearly stated that school boards have the right to schedule a "professional holiday" during the course of the school term if they choose.

Standa said all of PSEA's local associations, which represent 82,000 teachers and other educators in Pennsylvania, are being asked to urge local boards to support the teachers' request by granting the one-day "professional holiday."

PSEA's support of HB1812, a subsidy measure which would allocate approximately $60 million to local school districts, shows determination to improve the state support of public education, Standa said.

PSEA's salary proposal calls for improvement in minimum starting salaries from $4,500 to $8,000 in three steps by September 1969.

"We're supporting the Pennsylvania School Boards Association subsidy package, and they've supported our salary proposal. Now we're asking them to join with us in this effort to call the attention of the public, the legislators and the Governor that immediate action is needed on these bills."

"It's time for all school boards to join teachers in showing their interest, support and commitment to better education by taking immediate action to make Action for Education Day an event of undeniable impact," Standa stressed.

The resolution called for a mass demonstration March 4 by 25 per cent or more of the 82,000 members of PSEA with those remaining at home to conduct professional seminars, motorcades and meetings in their respective school districts.

It also noted that March 22 would be established as the deadline date for passage of the salary and subsidy legislation and authorized the reconvening of the PSEA House of Delegates for consideration of another course of action.

IMA-PSU Plan Series Of Management Seminars

The Industrial Management Association (IMA), affiliated with the YMCA, has arranged with Behrend Campus of Pennsylvania State University to conduct a series of four management seminars to be held at the YMCA on successive Wednesdays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. beginning April 3.

The purpose of the course is to provide supervisory personnel with a keener understanding and appreciation of the profit motive and of the human relations and communications problems as they exist today.

The fee for the course, open for foremen, general foreman, first-line supervisory personnel and others interested in their personal growth and development, is $20 for members and $25 for non-members. The fee includes the cost of instruction and materials. A Penn State Continuing Education Certificate will be awarded to those attending all four sessions.

The April 3 program, to be conducted by Dr. Arthur H.

Reede, professor of economics, Penn State University, will discuss industrial relations and union management trends. The April 10 program, dealing with supervisor's role in profit-making enterprise, will be conducted by Dr. Eugene A. Myers, associate professor of economics, Penn State University. Characteristics of effective leadership will be discussed by John Hamilton, assistant secretary and director of industrial relations, Manufacturers' Association of Erie, at the April 17 session. This will be followed on April 24 by a sound communications program conducted by Robert C. Baughman, technical communication editor, General Electric Co., Erie.

According to an announcement made by Paul Lewis, chairman of the IMA educational committee, enrollments for the four sessions are limited to 40 persons. Therefore, Lewis said, at this time industries are limited to four persons per industry. If a company does not use its limit, he added, then additional enrollments will be available.

Enrollments are to be made with Paul Lewis at Pennsylvania Furnace & Iron Co. Information may be secured by calling 723-9400 or 723-5157.

Honor Servicemen

The Warren Bell Telephone office's plan to honor Warren County servicemen and women with a special window display of photographs has been completed. Robert Dilks, local manager, said over 50 pictures are now on display in two windows at the Hickory street facility. Those serving are identified as to branch of service, rank and location. The patriotic display may be viewed until the end of February.

To Be Honored

A Corry-based State Trooper has been selected to be among those police officers from the area to be honored by the Union City American Legion Post-Saturday evening for his outstanding work as one of the criminal investigators for the Corry state police substation. Named to receive the honor is Trooper Paul St. 34, who has proven his capabilities as a police officer and criminal investigator. He is a 1958 graduate of the State Police Academy.

He said the Justice Department is now studying the proposed acquisition.

When taken with other drugs or alcohol, the effects of Belladonna are reportedly increased. Officers said the youths were swallowing several capsules at a time which allegedly produces hallucinations, trances, increased heart-beat and loss of concept of time, distance and space. Police said a large overdose could cause a serious mental disorder or even death.

No charges have yet been filed but police said the drug abuse is in violation of federal and state drug and cosmetic laws. The offense is punishable by a maximum prison sentence of five years and (or) a $5,000 fine.

Misuse of Drug Hospitalizes Teenager

ERIE—Misuse of a drug known as "belladonna" has allegedly hospitalized a teen-age girl, according to Millcreek police. It is also believed 30 other Millcreek youths are involved in misuse of the drug.

Following an investigation, police said 30 Millcreek youths have been connected with the drug. The drug in question was described by officers as an asthma preparation and contains a certain portion of belladonna, which in itself can be extremely dangerous if used without professional advice.

According to police the drug, taken by the girl, caused severe physical and emotional reactions. Millcreek officials said the asthma preparation can be purchased over the counter without a doctor's prescription and is easily obtainable. Its most common form is a fine brownish-green powder and when properly used is burned while the patient inhales fumes.

According to police, the young users took it internally in capsule form after buying other capsule-type medicine, emptying them and filling them with the asthma preparation.

When taken with other drugs or alcohol, the effects of Belladonna are reportedly increased. Officers said the youths were swallowing several capsules at a time which allegedly produces hallucinations, trances, increased heart-beat and loss of concept of time, distance and space. Police said a large overdose could cause a serious mental disorder or even death.

No charges have yet been filed but police said the drug abuse is in violation of federal and state drug and cosmetic laws. The offense is punishable by a maximum prison sentence of five years and (or) a $5,000 fine.

Bethlehem Steel Will Acquire Cerro Corp.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Co. will acquire Cerro Corp., a mining firm, in a stock transfer valued at $285 million under plans approved by shareholders of both companies Wednesday.

Bethlehem stockholders, meeting here, approved a change in their charter authorizing a new issue of 20 million shares of a new class of stock and the exchange of 7.1 million of the new share for Cerro stock.

Cerro shareholders met in New York. For each share of Cerro, stockholders will receive one share of Bethlehem's new $2.80 series A convertible preferred stock.

The new stock, paying $2.80 in dividends a year, may be converted any time to 1.33 shares of Bethlehem common. Bethlehem common closed Wednesday at 30 3/4.

Bethlehem retains the option to redeem the $2.80 series A convertible stock at $60 a share any time after March 31, 1973.

As of Nov. 30 there were 6,674,251 shares of Cerro common outstanding. There are also $8,041,500 of Cerro's 5 1/2 per cent subordinate debentures due in 1979. Holders of these debentures have the option until Dec. 31, 1968, of converting them into common stock at the rate of one share for each $23.43 principal amount of debentures.

At Wednesday's meeting Edmund F. Martin, Bethlehem's chairman and chief executive officer, said the Internal Revenue Service already has approved the tax aspects of the proposed purchase.

He said the Justice Department is now studying the proposed acquisition.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a woman who complained about rude sales people. I'm sure the writer has a point, but I wonder how much thought is given to rude customers? I've been in the retail business for over 25 years and I'd like to tell you how it looks from the other side of the counter.

I've seen customers switch price tags and take merchandise from the regular stock and say it was on the sale rack. Last week I saw a woman take a pair of cuticle scissors out of her purse and cut a big hole in the lining of a coat. She then brought the coat to me, said it was damaged and asked for a reduction in the price.

I've seen customers grind out cigarettes in the rugs and steal light bulbs out of the dressing rooms. They come in off the street to use the bathroom and make telephone calls. They ask for free boxes and then want us to mail the packages for them.

I won't go into the trouble I have had with shoplifters or the rubber checks I've been stuck with, the deadbeats who get mad when you telephone or write a letter and ask for your money. So, Ann Landers, whenever you hear people complain about the treatment they get in a retail store, you can be sure they deserve it. - - - SAM

DEAR SAM: Thanks for your letter. You must have had more good customers than bad ones or you could not have stayed in business for 25 years. (P.S. I hope your letter doesn't produce a run on cuticle scissors.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 13-year-old girl who needs your advice. There are so many things you write about in your column that I could never talk to Mom about. This is one of those problems.

Last Saturday I went to a downtown movie. I was supposed to meet my two cousins but they weren't at the box office where they were supposed to be so I went in alone.

I sat down near the back and all of a sudden I noticed a man across the aisle staring in my direction. After a while this man moved next to me. I kept my eyes straight ahead and didn't move. When he put his hand on my shoulder I got awfully scared. I didn't know what to do so I jumped out of my seat and ran out of the theater.

Was I a fool to run out? Did I do the right thing? - - - PETRIFFED

DEAR PET: You did the wrong thing. You should have gone immediately to the head usher or the manager of the theater, reported the incident and pointed the man out. He could then have been dealt with properly. Instead, you left him free to bother someone else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girl is very attractive and has excellent taste. Recently she saw a picture in a magazine and decided she was going to look exotic - - - like the model in the picture. She plucked out all her eyebrows and penciled in some new ones, about one inch higher than her own. I think her penciled eyebrows are cheap and unnatural. Also, she goes around looking surprised all the time. Should I tell her how I feel? - - - JAKE

DEAR JAKE: Without belaboring the point, tell her you prefer her own eyebrows to the ones she bought at the dime store and ask her if she will give the real ones another chance.

State Hospital Psychiatrist Guest Speaker At Meeting

The Young Mother's Study Club of Warren met on Monday, February 12, at the home of Mrs. Donald Miller on 3 Cottage Place, at 8:30. Mrs. Edward Burns presided over the business meeting and then turned the program over to Dr. Harold J. Reinhard, clinical director of Warren State Hospital for the past 8 years. Dr. Reinhard spoke on "Communication and It's Distortions".

The psychiatrist explained types of communication: Spoken, non-verbal, unconscious, giving examples from many cultures other than our own. He mentioned the feedback system whereby the hearer may understand what is being transmitted verbally or deny or distort. Dr. Reinhard stated that the majority of people hear about 50 percent of what is said to them and that the most important message usually is the feeling with which the words are said.

Several members volunteered to illustrate the point that people unconsciously maintain a standard distance from one another while they stand and talk. The comfortable distance between people usually does not exceed an inch.

At the close of the program, Dr. Reinhard answered various questions from the group. Assisting the hostess in the serving of refreshments was Mrs. Joseph Reinhardt and Mrs. James Hoskinson. The next meeting will be held on March 11 at the home of Mrs. Phillip Mathyer on 2 West Third Avenue to hear Dr. Donald J. Furman speak on "Self-Analysis".

Fashions From Rome

ROME (AP) — The fashion-conscious woman who opts for the Italian line this spring and summer will look cool, elegant and alluring.

The palest of colors, graceful, more fitted lines and slightly lower hemlines caught on as new fashion ideas when Italian couturiers unveiled their latest collections last month.

The mod look, miniskirts and boyishness became history.

Many buyers here for the recent shows agreed that the new line had promise. Orders began flowing in, with free-spending buyers laying down from $1,000-$1,300 for daytime model and even more for evening gowns.

A big favorite among the buyers was Valentino, whose "no color" creations were loaded with rich appliques and embroidery.

As always, Italian fabrics were a smash hit. The designers paraded fantastic silks, shantung and flannels in snow white, beige and pearl gray.

The Italians reached back to the '30s for the casual grace of this year's styles, although hemlines on the average were established two inches above the knee.

There were elegant, elongated V-necked pullovers, showing white shirt or scarf and ending in pleated or flared skirts. Tiziani took a cue from the past with face veils hanging from felt fedoras.

It was a big show for the shirt blouse. With frills or Ascots at the neck, they were worn with skirts under small-waisted coats in place of shifts.

The matching coat and dress were declining in popularity.

The bidding:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1NT Pass
3NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♠ South, the declarer at three no trump, fell a trick short due to mismanagement of a basic card combination.

West opened the four of spades and East put up the jack to dislodge declarer's queen. Declarer counted seven top tricks—the spade already in and two each in hearts, diamonds, and clubs.
It appeared that he must rely on the club suit for his eighth and ninth tricks.

A club was led to the ace and, when the queen came up from East, South's jack became established as a winner. When East showed out on the next lead; however,
West's ten was revealed to constitute a stopper.

Declarer cashed out the ace, king of hearts and the ace, king of diamonds, and then played the king and another club, putting West on lead with the ten. If West had started with a five card spade suit, he would now be down to all spades and the forced return of that suit would establish declarer's king as the ninth trick.

West retained a diamond as an exit card, however, and the defense proceeded to cash out the balance to administer a one trick setback.

At the conclusion of the deal, North pointed out to his partner that he could have made the hand by leading clubs from the dummy initially. Suppose, for example, that South crosses over to the North hand at trick two with the king of hearts and leads a small club.

East's queen appears and
South covers with the king.
He cashes the jack next and when East shows out, it becomes routine to finesse against West's ten and thereby pick up the entire suit.

It may be observed that, if clubs are divided three-two,
South gains nothing by cash-ing dummy's ace first. Also, if West has the singleton queen, then it is not possible to win four club tricks. The only four-club division that declarer can protect himself against is the one where East holds the lone queen and, to make allowance for this possibility, a low club must be led from the dummy.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1968.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — A new prospect may be up for your consideration but, before accepting, ascertain whether it is REALLY what you want. You can expect some extra responsibilities to be thrust upon you now.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Mixed influences, mixed possibilities. How you react, how you meet opposition and how you cooperate with associates will be telling points in day's success. Conferences and business negotiations should go well.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Good Mercury influences! An early, well-ordered start can put you ahead of others, give you advantages they will be striving for later. Give a thought to unusual opportunities outside your own field.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Despite a few minor obstacles, you should do well this day. Stars indicate general all-around improvement. Work with those who are adept at getting things done, and don't squander your fine talents on trivia.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Domestic interests and business matters should go especially well, but it's the kind of day that will reward ANY good effort — even if unusual complications are involved.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Keep on a steady course now. Don't fall yourself or those depending upon you by going off on tangents, following misguided policies or dubious tactics. You have friendly influences to help you.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Concentrate on essentials, forget anxiety, maintain your innate sense of humor. In this way you can avoid tension, have a satisfactory day.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — You may have to contend with some thoughtlessness and incompetence, but do not let it disturb you. Stress your innate sturdiness, adaptability AND that fine sense of humor which helps you to hurdle all obstacles.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Some unforeseen changes indicated. Take all in stride. Be temperate in demands, do not expect the unreasonable and tackle as much as you can without overtaxing yourself. Results may be slow in coming, but they will be enduring.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — A day for listening! Give careful thought to all that is said in conferences, discussions, if completely unbiased, you could learn much to your advantage.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Your planetary set-up indicates fine advantages in which you should excel. Matters requiring delicate handling and maneuverability especially favored.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — A test day of sorts. Select your own course if you prefer, but avoid contention with those who have a program on which you ought to work. Don't waste time on resentment, but go forward — with good will and confidence.

YOU BORN TODAY are strong-minded and strong-willed; have a nice sense of humor, but an even greater sense of "what MUST be done" and the determination to see that it IS done — completely and with perfection. You make friends in all walks of life, but prefer those with high ideals and strong convictions. Many dramatists, tragedians and classical writers have been Aquarians. Birthdate of Galileo, astronomer, physicist.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

INFECTED BONES
Bone infections (osteomyelitis) are not so common as in the past. Appropriate antibiotics and early diagnosis are given credit in many instances. Other factors are improvements in general health and hygiene.

Treatment is available for minor infections; impetigo is rare; and dental and tonsillar care are better. Control of these conditions has lessened the chance of developing the foci of infection that spreads to bones causing osteomyelitis.

Changes in the nature of bone infections, however, do not always mean that the situation has improved. Osteomyelitis in adults is usually due to injury and although the disorder is less common, once started, it cannot be reversed. Bone infections in children and adolescents are more benign and, as such, are easily missed until a large part of the structure is involved.

In children, streptococci are responsible and the involved extremity rapidly becomes swollen. Beneath the surface, microbes are destroying large pieces of bone. Considerable damage may occur before antibiotics have had time to act. In many instances, large doses of a wide-spectrum antibiotic are given even though the physician does not know the causative organism.

In adolescents, the disease runs a mild course with slight tenderness of the bone. The victim spares the extremity. Physicians may have trouble determining whether osteomyelitis, rheumatism or neuritis is the cause of distress. When in doubt, an antibiotic is given because it is well-known that extensive damage may occur before X-ray reveals the infection. An elevated white blood count offers the clue that infection exists. Surgical drainage usually is needed.

TOMORROW: Drinking Too Much.
Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

WATER IN LUNGS
A reader writes: What causes water in the lungs? REPLY

An irritation or infection of the membrane (pleura) that separates the outer wall of the lung from the inner wall of the chest cavity. This fluid varies in consistency from watery to thick purulent material. The situation is different from dropsy due to heart or kidney disease. In this condition, fluid accumulates in the lung tissues and air sac.

CHEEK-BITING HABIT
D. D. writes: How can I break myself of biting the inner lining of my cheeks? REPLY

Find out whether your teeth are rough and irritate the membrane or whether your bite is faulty. If these conditions do not exist, self-control will be necessary to break the habit.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT — Severe burns require the attention of the physician.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Solomon Boscov Is No Quitter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Solomon Boscov of Reading is no quitter — not for fire, broken bones or a stroke.

He even licked the depression by sticking to his work, and building up a group of department stores that are now the biggest in Reading.

Fires destroyed two big Boscov stores last year, in February and November. The second blaze came on the day he opened the store rebuilt on the ruins of the February fire.

The second fire, too, came just after he recovered from fractures of the left shoulder, hip and leg suffered in a September car crash.

The stroke followed the first fire.

"That really shocked him," said Albert, his son. "That store was his life. It was the original business he had launched in Reading."

But Boscov bounced right back.

"When the doctor said he could walk to the bathroom, he used to visit there 50 to 60 times a day—just for the excuse to stay active," said Albert.

Boscov came to America in 1911, claiming he walked across Europe from his Russian home before finally managing to get on a boat.

Boscov, now 77, still supervises the business, signing checks, and even wrapping merchandise.

"He figures he can't afford to loaf," said his son. "This always has been a working family, and everyone pays his way here."

Six in W. Va. Indicted On Bribe Conspiracy Charge

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Federal indictment of former Gov. William Wallace Barron, three West Virginia state officials and two other men on a bribery conspiracy charge in the letting of state contracts was disclosed Wednesday.

The indictment asserted the six had been steering state business to various companies in return for payoffs ever since Barron, a Democrat, took office in January, 1961. He was governor for four years.

Indicted jointly with Barron, 58, were Burl A. Sawyers, 55, state road commissioner; Vincent J. Johnkosi, 57, deputy road commissioner; Truman E. Gore, 56, state finance commissioner; Elkins lawyer Bonn Brown, 56, and Clarksburg automobile dealer Alfred W.

Schroath, 65.

A grand jury in Charleston returned the indictment Tuesday. It was made public simultaneously by the Justice Department in Washington and the office here of U.S. Dist. Atty. Milton J. Ferguson.

The defendants are not in custody. Summonses were issued for them to appear in U.S. District Court here at 10 a.m. Feb. 28.

The nine-page indictment said the six men operated a complex scheme in which Schroath established corporations in Ohio and Florida to receive payments from firms seeking to do business with the West Virginia state government.

Under this arrangement, the indictment charged, Brown and Schroath "would be the only owners of record of the receiving corporations," but all six men "would share equally in all profits."

The indictment was returned under a federal law which makes it a crime to use interstate commerce to distribute the proceeds of unlawful activity.

Barron became governor after four years as state attorney general, and left office in January, 1965. The indictment said the conspiracy, however, continued "up to and including the date of this indictment."

Barron has practiced law in Charleston since his term ended. Sawyers, Johnkosi and Gore—Barron administration appointees—have continued in the same posts in the current administration of Barron's successor, Democratic Gov. Hulett C. Smith.

Smith announced suspension of Sawyers, Johnkosi and Gore shortly after the indictment was revealed.

Barron issued a statement calling the indictment part of a "continuing effort to harass and discredit me and my administration."

He said "I have no knowledge of any criminal conspiracy or of any facts which would lead any reasonable person to conclude that such a conspiracy occurred. I am confident that if a trial ever occurs on any such indictment I will be completely vindicated."

BETTERS TV IMAGE

Harold Stassen, wearing a toupee "to get along" with TV crews, is shown during a news conference in Washington this week. Making another try for the presidential nomination,

Stassen said the U.S. should stop the bombing of North Vietnam and "invite both Vietnam to membership in the United Nations."

Mother Doesn't Want Military Funeral for Son

STROUDSBURG, Pa. (AP) — "We don't want a military funeral. I don't want any more guns," said Mrs. Arthur Jensen Jr. after learning her Marine son was killed in the Vietnam fighting.

"I protested the war and will continue to do so more than ever," said Mrs. Jensen Wednesday after learning of the death of Pfc. Robert A. Jensen, 19, in South Vietnam.

"We have no business in Southeast Asia. People don't realize how wrong our foreign policy is," Mrs. Jensen said.

Mrs. Jensen and a younger son took part in a protest against the war in Washington last March and said she had been vigorously protesting the war in recent months. She also has another son.

Marines while a student at Cumberland College in Kentucky.

"We tried to persuade him to join the Peace Corps," she said, "but he declined. He said the Marines received the best training."

Mrs. Jensen said her son had planned to study for the ministry when he finished his service obligation. She said he had become disillusioned with the conduct of the war.

"He was very concerned with the poverty over there," she continued. "He told of the Vietnamese people living in filth and he felt the United States was at fault."

"I shall insist on no military funeral. After all, he was my son, no matter what the Marine Corps says," she said.

She said he would be buried from a Methodist Church after the body is received.

Time Inc. Acquires N.J.'s Largest Daily Newspaper

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Time Inc. moved Wednesday to extend its publishing empire into the daily newspaper field with an agreement to take over the Newark Evening News.

The acquisition would give Time, the nation's largest weekly news magazine publisher, control over the largest daily newspaper in New Jersey.

It also could give Time indirect access to the afternoon newspaper field in New York City, now served only by the tabloid Post. The News recently began a New York City edition which is shipped from Newark by helicopter.

No purchase price was given, but stock prices indicated the transaction would top $33.5 million.

The News transfer, a subject of rumor for weeks, is subject to approval by the Internal Revenue Service of an arrangement to make it tax-free.

Time said no cash is involved.

Hoffa Receives Aerial Valentine

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — This was St. Valentine's Day. It also was Teamster President Jimmy Hoffa's 55th birthday.

You could tell it by glancing up at the sky where a sky-writing airplane extended birthday greetings to the imprisoned union leader.

The 125-foot banner waving behind the aircraft was emblazoned with block letters: "Birthday Greetings Jimmy Hoffa."

At the end of the banner was a big red heart, symbolic of St. Valentine's Day.

Hoffa entered the federal prison here last year to begin serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering.

The pilot of the greeting plane identified himself as Harley Mansfield, of Reading, Mass. He said the stunt was commissioned by the Teamsters Union.

The prison maintained its usual tight-lipped calm.

Whether Hoffa actually saw the greeting was a matter of conjecture. He has been employed recently in the shoe repair shop.

Hattie Ophelia Wyatt Caraway, a Democrat of Jonesboro, Ark., widow of Sen. Thaddeus Horation Caraway, was the first woman elected to the U.S. Senate.

How Does U.S. Command Arrive At Figures of Enemy Dead?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
How does the U.S. Command in Saigon arrive at those figures on enemy dead in Vietnam? By body count, say American spokesmen there. But the Pentagon concedes that sometimes they are just estimates.

"When they can count, they count," said one high Pentagon official. "Otherwise they estimate."

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has suggested that the figures of Communist casualties be "used with a great deal of caution." He added that they were just as apt to be understatement as exaggeration.

Military informants said the U.S. casualty reports were begun in 1962 after McNamara called for measurable indicators of progress in the war.

Shafer Says Administration Lost in Storm

CHICO, Calif. (AP)—Pennsylvania's Republican Gov. Raymond P. Shafer told a dinner audience here Wednesday night that "it is quite obvious the Democrats know that the Johnson administration is lost in the storm."

Shafer added that "the American people are not going to follow" such an administration.

The Pennsylvania chief executive has been on a speaking tour of Lincoln Day celebrations that brought him to Denver Tuesday and to the West Coast Wednesday. He spoke earlier Wednesday at a luncheon in Palm Springs.

Shafer told his Chico audience that the Johnson administration's "reporting to the American people on Vietnam has been bewildering." He continued:

"Promises have been made to the poor in the big cities that are out of proportion with the administration's ability to perform. And broken promises in ghettos of this nation are not simple matters to be forgotten. They are the fire on the fuse of human expectations that have been aroused to the explosive point by the promises. 'You and I can be proud that our party is once again being sought out by the people of our troubled nation to provide a new era of leadership, as they once sought out Lincoln.'"

Brig. Gen. Winant Sidle, U.S. information chief in Saigon, said recently that figures released by the U.S. Command come from regular reports issued every six hours by American divisions.

Sidle said the body counts may be made by squad, or platoon size units, and never more than company size. This indicated, he said, that the figures did not result from "estimates or guesstimates."

These field counts are relayed to battalion level, Sidle said, and then up the chain of command to division, which issues its situation report to the force headquarters.

Sidle insisted that casualties resulting from bombings, strafing by planes and helicopter gunships, as well as those caused by artillery fired from great distances were not estimated or added into the totals "unless someone actually gets in there and counts the bodies."

Correspondents who have been in the field claim that body counts are questionable. The field commander has plenty to do after a battle, securing his perimeter and taking care of

Bucktail Schools Still Closed

RENOVO, Pa. (AP)—The two schools of the Bucktail Area Jointure were closed for the second day Wednesday as the 42 teachers pressed their demands for a pay raise.

The situation has ended classes for 998 pupils of the two schools.

John Rathmell, president of Local 1579 of the AFL-CIO Teacher Federation, said in a letter to the school board Wednesday that "we are willing to negotiate at any time, day or night."

Rathmell said the teachers were in a "continuous meeting" at a rented room in the YMCA Building here.

The situation developed Tuesday, with the teachers demanding a $200 immediate annual increase, with another $600 next year.

The Bucktail Jointure embraces the Renovo area of Clinton County. Its schools are an elementary school in Renovo and a six-year combination senior and junior high school at Farwell, two miles east of town.

wounded, and counting enemy dead is the least of his worries. As a result, they say, a subordinate usually makes the count or, if the situation is critical, a battlefield estimate is made.

Military sources acknowledge that it is impossible to get any accurate count in cases where a Communist unit is caught by an artillery barrage or air strike and only pieces of bodies litter the area.

And yet figures are given on KBA, or killed by air. Such counting is supposed to be done by pilots of relatively slow, low-flying spotter planes. But, it has been pointed out that spotter pilots cannot tell whether a Viet Cong is actually dead or faking, or perhaps wounded.

Recommends Single Dept. of Transportation

HARRISBURG (AP)—A special study committee recommended to Gov. Shafer Wednesday that various aspects of transportation, including highway construction and supervision, be consolidated into a single Department of Transportation.

In a statement issued in his absence, Shafer described the report as a "major step along the road to making this great commonwealth the hub of both transportation and the transportation industry itself in future years."

The proposed department, creation of which would need supporting legislation, would function under a secretary having cabinet status. The office of highways secretary would be abolished and that department would be administered by a deputy secretary of transportation.

Other deputy secretaries would be in charge of administration, program planning and budgeting, research and development, local area transportation assistance and safety.

In addition to highway construction, the department would assume the role of:

— Registering motor vehicles and licensing operators, and administering the state's traffic safety program, a function of the Department of Revenue.

— Examining motor vehicle operators, a function of the State Police.

— Various other activities performed by a half-dozen departments such as Commerce, Community Affairs, Forests and Waters and Military Affairs.

Shafer said the next steps are: establishment of the new department by the legislature, formation of a master plan for transportation and long-range implementation of the plan.

In his letter of transmittal to Shafer, Leland Hazard of Pittsburgh, chairman of the 45-member committee, said an outline of the proposed master plan would be ready by the middle of this year.
